33 County Princesses To Vie For State Crown

CLARION (Clarion Co.)—Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and Promotion Services has announced that its 33rd Annual Dairy Princess Pageant will be held on Saturday evening, September 23, at the Harrisburg Marriott. A milk/punch reception will start at 5:30 p.m. followed by a banquet at 6:30 p.m. and the pageant.

Thirty-three county Dairy Princesses will compete for the title of Pennsylvania Dairy Princess now held by Kimberly Bonzo of Beaver County. The newly selected princess will reign for a period of one year from September 1989 to September 1990. During that time she will represent the dairy farmers of Pennsylvania speaking out for milk and all dairy products.

The Pageant which will again be held on the Saturday evening preceding All-American Dairy week, will end two full days of activities and interviews for the contestants. Four judges, all from out of state, will select a Pennsylvania Dairy Princess and a first and second alternate from seven finalists.

The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program is supported by Pennsylvania Dairy Farmers through their various advertising and promotion agencies: American Dairy Association/Dairy Council, Inc., Mid-Atlantic Milk Marketing Assn., Federal Order #36-Mid-East UDIA, and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program as well as the Department of Agriculture and contributions from other dairy related organizations and individuals. Again this year, as the result of a grant from Sire Power, Inc. and several anonymous individuals the awards to the winners will be: $1200 to the Pennsylvania Dairy Princess with alternates receiving $500 and $400 respectively.

In addition, three girls will receive $100 awards for outstanding original dairy promotion presentations and two will receive $50 awards for compiling scrapbooks which chronicle their dairy princess activities. All contestants will receive a two-day stay at the Marriott and an appropriate gift. The contestants themselves will select the coveted "Miss Congeniality" award from among their own ranks.

The primary purpose of the Dairy Princess program in Pennsylvania is the promotion of the Midwest BST Research, Field Trials Visited

BY
EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

DETROIT, MI & ST. LOUIS, MO — A group of farm editors (this one included), shuttled from farm to farm and from research facility to corporate headquarters here this week, to get the latest update on bovine somatotrophin (BST) as seen through the eyes of Monsanto Agricultural Company.

The farmers told of their experiences with on-farm use of BST. The researchers showed off their ultra-modern facilities and reported on how they get genes and bacteria to work together to produce it. And the corporate officials told why they believe facts will prevail over emotion as this first-fruits of animal biotechnology sits poised in the halls of the FDA, waiting for the nod of approval to enter the commercial market place.

When you drive in the lane at Nobis Dairy Farm in Fowler, MI, located about 30 miles north and 15 miles west of Lansing, you know Ken and Larry are good managers. The buildings are in excellent repair, the free-stall barn is clean and airy. The milk cows have good body condition, and the heifers and calves are growthy for their age.

The Nobis brothers have put their 260-cow commercial dairy herd in the Monsanto field trials for bovine somatotrophin (BST). For the past 21 months, they have had 100 doses available each trial period to use at their discretion to improve milk production. During that time, they have increased their herd size by 70 head and raised their milk production from 20,800 pounds to 25,000 pounds. And while the Nobis brothers have increased nutrition management in general, they feel about half of their production increase comes from the use of BST.

"We are using BST to prop up the last part of the lactation," Ken said. "We don't start using it until about 135 days into the lactation. For the first 100 days, you naturally get the boost in production from calving, so we think it makes economic sense to use BST only in the last part of the lactation."

Every 14 days the brothers tie the cows to be treated in the stalls. One person walks down the front of the cows with a clip board to identify each cow, and the other person injects the product under the tail head. The cows don't react to the injection.

Acres Corn Update: Corn futures prices erased yesterday's losses and settled higher today from 2-1/2 cents on the September '90 option to 4-1/2 cents on the December, March and May options.

Late session buying was tied to rumors that private crop forecaster Sparks Commodities would release their estimate today of 7.050 billion bushels which compares with the USDA outlook at 7.348 billion bushels. Further strength was attributed to short-covering in response to oversold ideas and a brighter near term export outlook. Improved conditions on yesterday's weekly update kept the lid on gains in the Sept. option with today's close 3-1/4 higher at $2.35-1/2.

Acres Soybean Update: Soybean futures prices firmed today and ended the session from unchanged on the Sept. '90 option to 5-1/2 cents higher on the spot option. Strength was tied to ideas the upcoming crop reports would be bullish after Sparks Commodities was rumored to be issuing a figure of 1.847 billion bushels. News after the close that 200,000 metric tonnes had been sold to unknowns will provide additional support for tomorrow's session with cash market tightness and ideas that the U.S. is now more competitive in the world market. November closed 5-1/4 cents higher at $5.81-3/4 after trading in a range from $5.74-1/4 to $5.84.

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures prices closed from 1/4 cent higher on the March to 1-1/2 cents lower on the May option after a quiet and featureless session. The lack of follow through after yesterday's rally exerted pressure early in the session with support provided by the stopping of 1.46 million bushels this morning. Some spreading was featured with commercials and locals spreading the March/December; otherwise the lack of commercial buying interest kept the market struggling to hold on to yesterday's gains. September dropped 1/2 cent and settled at $3.96-3/4 after trading in a range from $3.96 to $3.99.

Sept. 6, 1989

Movement of ready to cook whole fryers was good. Supplies were in close balance for the active demand. In the parts complex, supplies of cutlets and whole breasts were short of current needs, legs and leg quarters were barely adequate, and wings were adequate for an improved buyer interest. Less than trucklot asking prices were higher at 61-72 cents. Live supplies were adequate. Average weights were mostly desirable. The slaughter schedules for today were heavy. The trade sentiment was fully steady to firm.

Northeast Chicken Parts

Sept. 6, 1989

Buying interest remained active as traders attempted to refill pipelines depleted by heavy movement through the weekend. Supplies of cutlets were limited and several buyers reported unfilled interest. Whole breasts were in short supply and sellers found clearances fairly easy at higher price levels as both further processors and retailers competed for product. Legs and leg quarters were generally no more than adequate with the bulk of sales at steady price levels. Wings were in uneven distribution for a generally improved demand.

AUCTION NOT REPORTED SEPTEMBER 4, 1989, DUE TO LABOR DAY HOLIDAY!

Take Your Seat, The Performance Is About To Begin.

You'll applaud the performance of Funk's G-Hybrids like G-4543, G-4626 and G-4446 when the curtain falls at harvest time.

A top choice for shelled grain or ear corn in 110 to 120-day maturity areas, G-4543 produces maximum yields even at lower populations. In Delaware hybrid field corn trials, it topped the field with 148.4 bu./A.

G-4626 has it all in a 115 to 120-day maturity hybrid—fast dry-down, outstanding stay-green, superior standability, excellent plant health and exceptional yields. In Delaware trials, G-4626 produced yields up to 200.9 bu./A.

G-4446 delivers superior late season standability, excellent grain quality and high test weights. A multi-purpose, widely adapted hybrid, G-4446 produced a state record 252.4 bu./A. in the 1986 Pa. Five-Acre Corn Club competition.

Get your ticket to superior performance by contacting your local Hoffman sales representative or our Landisville office. Call toll free 1-800-233-0137. In PA: 1-800-732-0456.

THE OLD FARMER'S ALMANAC

SEPT. 11-17, 1989

Sept. 15, fine 6 times in 7.

Sept. 13, 1954, Maine elects its first Democratic governor in 20 years with Edmund S. Muskie . . . Full Harvest Moon, Sept. 15, is also Felt Hat Day, the traditional day for men to resume wearing winter-weight hats . . . Average length of days for the week 12 hours 33 minutes . . Sept. 17, 1939, Russia invades Poland in World War II . . . He that marries for money will earn it.

Ask the Old Farmer: Is it true that potato peelings in the fire will help clean a chimney? O. N., Tenn.
It's an old custom and so far as we know it never fails. Of course, people used to eat more potatoes than we do today, so the dose was liberal.

Home Hints: Lighter fish cakes are made with baked, not boiled, potatoes

OLD FARMER'S WEATHER FORECAST

New England: Clear and warm, what's the harm? Showers interrupt for a mid-week wetting; then cloudy skies and more cool temperatures come on Greater New York-New Jersey: Sunny and very warm, we like that. A few showers mid-week; then cloudy and cool temperatures, before it clears again.

Middle Atlantic Coastal: Partly cloudy, showers in the east; turning hot. That's a start. Rain and milder; then clear and pleasant for the weekend

Piedmont & Southeast Coastal: Rain and it's clearing in the west. Clear and warm, mid-week, and finally more rain comes on. Cooler temperatures now

OPINION

Do It Right

That safety pays is evident to managers of countless enterprises. Aside from humane considerations, emphasizing safety results in considerable savings, including lower insurance costs. Farmers are no exception...doing the job safely is doing it well.

• Make accident prevention a management goal. Develop a safety plan suited to your operation and your workers.

• Keep informed about safety. Read and follow instructions in operator's manuals, product labels, warning decals, etc.

• Inspect all equipment and facilities for hazards. Correct them, but also devise ways to avoid or live safely with fixed hazards.

• Take needed precautions before starting the job, like checking that equipment is in good working order, shields are in place, and you are wearing appropriate personal protective equipment (safety shoes, goggles, respirator, etc.) for the job or conditions.

Train employees and family workers to work safely and well.

• Be physically and mentally prepared to cope with each day's activities. Know and respect your limitations. Stay fit and seek medical care for health problems.

• Be prepared for accident, medical, fire and weather emergencies.

• Take special precautions to protect children, the elderly, handicapped and farm visitors. For example, don't let kids ride on farm machinery.

Robert Leiby and David Dunbar of the Lehigh County Extension office say, "Do It Right." We agree!

NOW IS THE TIME

By Jay Irwin
Lancaster County Agriculture Agent

To Observe National Farm Safety Week

President Bush has proclaimed September 17-23, 1989, as National Farm Safety Week, the 46th annual observance.

This year's theme, SAFEing The Farm and Ranch, approaches safety in a very positive manner. "SAFEing" means to pre-act rather than re-act... to do the necessary things ahead of time that can reduce or even eliminate risk of accidental injury, property damage and work-related illness. Put another way "Don't wait until the horse has gotten out to lock the barn door."

According to National Safety Council estimates for 1988, work-related mishaps in agriuclture accounted for about 1,500 deaths and 140,000 disabling injuries.

Success in farming takes planning, preparation, perspiration and perseverance. But a farmer who wants to stay in the "pink" physically and in the "black" financially should add another word beginning with "P": PREVENTION... prevention of accidents and illnesses.

Let's practice safe habits every day.

To Ensile Corn At The Proper Stage

Most of our corn crop looks good after a good growing season and corn silage is an important part of the feeding program in dairy and feeder cattle. Harvesting corn at the right time is very important. I'd like to point out that more feed nutrients will be harvested if the ear can be allowed to mature into the early dent stage. Silage research reveals that corn made into silage in the silk stage will yield only 63% feed nutrients while corn in the dent stage should give silage with 69% feed nutrients.

The important thing is to allow the ear to develop properly before ensiling, if at all possible. Corn is a valuable crop; let's make every effort to harvest the maximum feed nutrients.

To Be Aware Of The Century Farm Program

The Century Farm Program is aimed at recognizing the efforts of Pennsylvania's farm families which have preserved the tradition of the rural heritage of the pioneer farm.

The program was started as part of the Nation's bicentennial observance in 1976, but is being continued for its value in promoting the ideals of the family farm and the importance of farming to Pennsylvania's economy.

To be eligible for Certification as a Pennsylvania Century Farm, a farm must have been owned by the same family for the last 100 consecutive years, and a family member must currently reside on the land. In addition, the farm must consist of ten or more acres of the original holdings or gross at least $1,000 a year from the sale of agriculture products.

We encourage you to participate in this program that is administered by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Applications are available at the County Extension Office.

To Mow Weedy Pastures

If you pasture is weedy, then get out the mower. There are two good reasons for this; one it eliminates the production of weed seeds and two, it removes mature forage which lets plants send out new and tender growth. But, before you mow, you should graze the pasture heavily. With grazing you can utilize all the available feed. The animals eat some weeds, but they also eat some of the tall grasses that would be wasted by mowing. Remember to mow closely... 2 to 3 inches. And instead of trashing the clippings, save them. Many farmers recover enough hay from pasture mowings to winter their cattle.

The Penn State Cooperative Extension is an affirmative action, equal opportunity educational institution.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

ON FEEDING YOURSELVES

September 17, 1989

Background Scripture: Ezekiel 18.

Devotional Reading: Matthew 5:1-12

Dr. Hans Selye, who was the world's foremost pioneer in stress research, told of interviewing two young men who were the sons of the town drunk. One of these men had followed in the footsteps of his father and with the same tragic consequences. The other, however, was a successful, well-regarded member of the community. When Selye questioned them separately as to the reasons for their own personal success or lack of it, both replied, in effect, "What else would you expect with a father like mine?"

In 34 years of pastoral counseling I have frequently heard troubled people say pretty much the same thing, attributing their present circumstances to the actions, words, or influences of some other person—most often a parent or parents. "That's why I am the way that I am," they explain. This usually leaves them with two conclusions: (1) they are not to blame for their present situation, and (2) they can't do anything about it. In other words, they are victims of someone else's sins or mistakes.

VICTIMS OF OURSELVES

One way or another, I try to help these people to realize that they are simply copping-out by blaming someone else for what they did a long time ago. It is true that the actions, words and attitudes of other people can have harmful effects upon us, but if, year after year, we continue to play the "victim" to their sins of omission or commission, we are victims, not of someone else, but of ourselves. No one can victimize you for very long unless you permit them to do so.

The 18th chapter of Ezekiel is a brilliant reminder of this. Apparently for the most part the Jewish exiles in Babylon are second generation captives. They have been complaining that they are having to suffer for the sins of their fathers and they have used the old proverb to voice their protest: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge" (Ezekiel 18:2).

GOOD NEWS!

Through Ezekiel, God tells the Jews that they and their proverb are wrong: they are not suffering for the sins of their father, but their own sins. Yes, it was the sins of their fathers that brought them to Babylon, but, if they are continuing to fare poorly in their new situation, it is their own fault. "If a man is righteous and does what is lawful and right, he shall surely live, says the Lord God" (18:9). No person will be responsible for the sins of others. Only "the soul that sins shall die" (18:4,20). ("Live" and "die" are used figuratively here, not literally.) If a righteous man has an unrighteous son, it is the son who is responsible for his sins. If a righteous son has an unrighteous father, he will not have to be responsible for his father's sins. "The righteousness shall be upon himself, and the wickedness of the wicked shall be upon himself" (18:20).

That's good news! But there's even better news: even an unrighteous person can know the favor of God if he or she turns from unrighteousness. Actually, it is the present moment that counts: not what we did do in the past, either good or bad, but what is our heart's desire at this present moment. No righteousness in the past can free us from an unrepentant present heart, nor can any past unrighteousness keep us from God's grace right now.

If we turn from our sin and toward God, we can live in his grace—now!

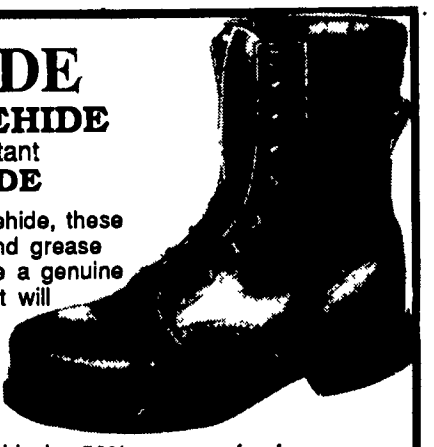
HORSEHIDE

GENUINE HORSEHIDE
Barnyard Acid Resistant
AMERICAN MADE



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. MoorMan's Beef Cattle Boost Medicated

They're right off the truck, probably off feed and vulnerable to sickness

Getting those calves eating and gaining again is the key to your profitability and maybe their survival A simple, economical way to do it is with MoorMan's Adjustment Program

Just add 1 lb per head daily of Beef Cattle Boost® to your own forage and grain Feed it for 28 days after arrival It's highly palatable and easily digested by stressed calves So they eat more feed which helps increase gain and reduce sickness

Beef Cattle Boost contains Aureo S 700* which aids in the maintenance of weight gain in the presence of respiratory disease such as shipping fever

Ask your MoorMan Representative about Beef Cattle Boost It's the easiest way to help your calves survive and thrive

Acres Cattle Update: Live cattle futures prices settled from 3 to 30 higher while feeders gained from 7 to 35 points on short covering tied to oversold conditions. Further buying was tied to reports that fed cattle sales were gaining momentum at slightly lower prices along with news late in the day that the Polish government was requesting 50,000 metric tonnes of bellies and beef from the U.S. Feeders were supported by spillover form the live cattle. October live cattle settled at $72.37/cwt, up $ .12 after trading in a range from $72.17 to $72.55. September feeders posted a $ .07/cwt gain at $82.07 after trading in a narrow range from $81.90 to $82.25.

NEXT DAY OUTLOOK: CASH PRICES - steady FUTURES - steady to mixed

Acres Hog Update: Live hog futures reversed today and ended the session higher from 5 on the Jul and Aug options to 88 on the December. Strength was in part tied to spillover from sharply higher pork bellies and light short covering. Gains were held in check by continued large receipts and cash market weakness amid the sentiment that packers were in pretty good shape inventory-wise. Underlying support was provided by ideas that cash prices would stabilize tomorrow. Bellies were sharply higher on news that Poland was seeking 50,000 metric tonnes each of U.S. pork bellies and beef as part of a food aid package.

BST Research

They have experienced no health related problems and no breeding problems related to the use of BST. In fact, the number of cull cows leaving the herd decreased by 33 head from 1987 to 1988. And this year looks even better.

In addition, the cows that were treated with BST in the last lactation started out better this year, too. But the increase is not necessarily repeatable, either by lactation or by genetics. No one seems to know why sometimes it works and sometimes it doesn't work on the same cows or in the same herd. Yet, in most cases, you do get a 10- to 12-pound per cow per day increase in production for the first six weeks. Then the condition of the cow and the amount of energy you get into her will determine if you hold the extra milk production.

But for all practical purposes, you need more records, particularly milk weight records, to know exactly what production you are getting from the BST. In the Nobis herd, they have a DHIA tester come twice per month to give them more current milk weight data. But they still believe BST is one thing that came along that has done what people said it would do.

"We were expecting problems," Larry said. "We thought it would be harder to keep condition on the cow, thought we might have mastitis problems, or breeding problems. We just haven't..."

At Nobis they think BST should be used as another management tool. If you have up to an 18,000-pound herd, they think you should probably initiate other better management practices first. After you feed to get the maximum inherent genetic production from your cows, you could then consider the use of BST to go higher in production.

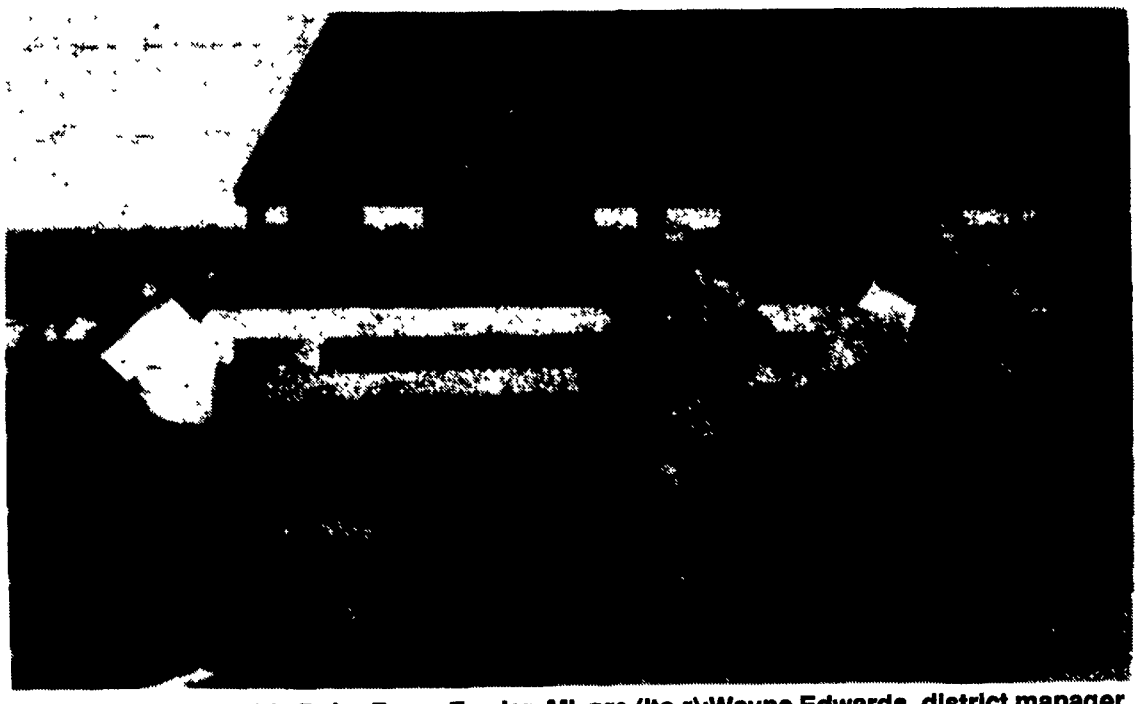
The brothers think a cost of 50 cents per cow per day would make the product very profitable in their herd. And since four companies will likely get the opportunity to compete for the farmers' business, the competition will drive the cost of the product down from the beginning of sales.

Ken did express some real concerns about cooperatives and retail stores who have sided with vocal animal rights groups and refused to handle milk produced under BST treatment.

"We are especially disappointed at the reaction of some farm groups," he said. "I think they are setting a dangerous precedent and they give credibility to people who don't care about the farmer. We need to refute the emotional input from these groups whenever possible and we need to do it at the pharmaceutical company level, the university level and the producer level. Frankly, I don't think the consumer is that stupid. You just don't see anything in a cow treated with BST that you don't see in a fresh cow," Ken said.

Two other farmers were visited by the editors and names, addresses and photographs were recorded. But later in the trip, officials at Monsanto ask the farm media not to identify these two farms for security reasons. But it can be said that the results of the BST trials in these two herds were identical to the experience of the Nobis brothers.

One father and son team at Elsie, MI, has cows on the top DHIA list for the first time in the history of the farm. In this herd the cows are very tame and in excellent body condition. These dairymen wait until after the peak production of the lactation is past and then BST is injected. The cows then usually produce the same level as their peak production accomplished after calving. BST holds the high production on through the lactation. No health problems were seen.



Visiting on the Nobis Dairy Farm, Fowler, MI. are (lto r):Wayne Edwards, district manager, Ken Nobis, Dr. Robert Patton, product development and Larry Nobis. The Nobis herd is on Monsanto's field trials for BST.

"BST is a natural protein that is produced in the pituitary gland of all cattle."—Robert Collier

At the third farm located at Fowler, the dairymen raised the production average on this commercial herd by 2,000 pounds of milk. They also had no breeding problems and no side health problems from the use of BST. No question about it, the commercial dairy herds visited by the Monsanto farm editors' tour saw evidence that BST works. They also found that the average expected increase in milk production was from 10 to 12 pounds per cow per day.

Bill Thomas, farm trial inspector, reported at the dinner meeting with the trial farm families on Tuesday evening, that 93 to 95 percent of the cows given BST will respond with increased milk production. He said the response is immediate and the drop-off in production after the last treatment is given, is also noticable.

In addition, farmers who want to use BST effectively will need to keep better records. Beside the usual calving/breeding records, the daily milk weights may also be essensial so that production peaks and drops are noticed immediately. Thomas reported that in the on-farm trials, the response was better than at the university trials.

"Farmers just take care of the individual cow at home better than the hired help at the universities do." Thomas said.

Farmers wanted to know what Mansanto officials thought the selling price would be when the product is approved by the FDA. One official responded that his guess was that because four companies will have the BST product right from the begining of sales, the competition may drive the price down to about 25 to 30 cents per day per cow. But he said, no one really knows what the price will be or how it will be distributed. But the official speculated that the company may have some regions with large herds where sales will be direct to dairymen. In other areas, for example, Pennsylvania and Maryland, where the herds are smaller, a dealer network may be used.

"We were expecting problems. We thought it would be harder to keep condition on the cow, thought we might have mastitis or breeding problems. We just haven't..."—Ken and Larry Nobis

On the other hand, the distribution of BST may need to go through veterinarians. This type of distribution would necessitate higher margins; thus, a greater cost to the dairymen. Veterinarian distribution may be necessary not for medical reasons but to make sure the used needles and syringes are properly disposed.

At the dinner meeting Pete Ondrus, Carson City, reported that he had his herd on the trials but dropped out, not because it didn't work, but because he became afraid that he might lose his milk market. Ondrus said he read the negative reports in the papers about milk companies that had shut farmers down when they found out they were producing milk with BST treatment.

He added that we don't know, in the high producing cows that are already under stress, what will be the outcome if we stress them more with BST treatment. "What will it do to the cows?" he asked.

In addition, Ondrus said he felt you would need a computer to help you find the peak of lactation so you could use the product effectively.

Ondrus said that even though he was not on the trial anymore, the disciplines he learned in better management added as much to his management practices as BST.

"BST is one of the best things to come along since the milking machine," Ondrus said.

A mini-computer is used to keep track of feed consumption by cows involved in BST research.

"We don't know what the product price will be, but competition may drive it down to 25 to 30 cents per cow per day."—Robert Patton

Dr. Gary Hartnell, group leader of dairy clinical research, said that nutritionally, you need to handle a BST treated cow just like you handle a fresh cow. "Cows on BST do increase dry matter intake, but it lags behind the increase in milk production by about 4 to 6 weeks," Hartnell said. "What we see with BST is like starting the lactation over again in the middle. Therefore, the kind of feeding program you have followed in early lactation, you can follow on into the later part of the lactation as you start to get production increases from BST.

"But the rules of the game have not changed," Hartnell said. "The feeding recommendations that are now in place don't need to be changed. It's just like feeding a higher producing cow."

In research work done with pastures and roughages as the main part of the ration, Hartnell said cows responded at the same magnitude as they do when fed high concentrate rations. But just like any other feeding program you need to get the cows in good condition before the next lactation starts. If you don't the subsequent lactation will be poor.

Dr. Walter Hobgood, director of marketing BST, said Monsanto is committed to help farmers with management imput so that their product will work at it's best on the farm. And while he agrees that the company has responsibility to educate the public on the safety of BST, he said the dairy industry also needs to help. "If the dairymen decide they want to use the product because of its benefits, then the dairy industry should help with consumer education too," He said.

Larry O'Neill, manager, public affairs, said surveys show that when consumers only think of BST as a hormone, they express concern about its use. But when they find out that BST occurs naturally in milk, they give a more positive response. In addition, when the facts are presented that BST is another efficiency tool to help keep the cost of milk competitive with soft drinks, consumers respond more favorably.

O'Neill said Monsanto has already embarked on a consumer education program by meeting with national consumer groups and New York editors of homemaker magazines. They also have discussed the issue with food marketers and retail food associations. And O'Neill said he would characterize these consumer groups' responses as informed and neutral.

As for animal rights' groups, O'Neill said he thinks it is going to be a very tough problem to deal with. "We will just need to fall back on the facts that cows do not object to the injection and we have no health problems from its use."

But if a person objects to giving a cow an injection other than for disease control, then we will just need to disagree."

O'Neill cited another survey that showed 80 percent of the respondents did not think it was

Yoder Consignments Top Somerset Fall Classic

BY GAY N. BROWNLEE
Somerset Co. Correspondent

MEYERSDALE (Somerset Co.) — The Somerset Fall Classic held at the Somerset County fairgrounds in Meyersdale, Pa. was delayed nearly an hour at starting time because of the beautiful weather. One of the finest days this summer gave farmers an opportunity to catch up on undone field work.

Paul and Naomi Yoder of Oakland, Md. sold the animal bringing the best price at the sale. Cherrie-Kreek Impact Blackie, a three-year- nine-month-old cow was purchased by Paul B. Zimmerman of Ephrata, Pa. for $3,350. Zimmerman's representative, John Burkett, from Blair County, handled the transaction and stated that Zimmerman will probably add the cow to his milking herd.

Blackie is the daughter of C Hanoverhill Impact-ET and Kinglea Bootmaker Gertie. Her credentials are good. "She's got a good test behind her and an excellent record behind her," said John Urbas, a co-chairman of the sale. "She comes from a high test family with two generations behind her that have a record of 1,100 pounds of fat."

CREATIVELY (ORGANICALLY) SPEAKING

Do you use a John Deere manual for an automobile? No. The wrong oil and fuel may do it permanent damage. You use the manual for the creator of the motor. Then why do you use a man made manual for the soil which the creator created? The boy now has permanent damage. The wrong fertilizer causes unhealthy soil which causes unhealthy plants which need insecticides and fungicides which is what the consumers are complaining about and rising up against it.

We get long distance calls for addresses of farmers that grow toxic free meat and poultry and produce. Super markets also get requests for unsprayed produce. Local farmers want organic grown grains and soybeans at a premium price to feed to organic poultry for premium prices.

If organic farming would give less crop, it would still be a duty to refrain from poisoning your fellowmen. But country wise it gives better and larger crops, and costs less. Make a test and prove it. Apply our materials in the fall as soon as the crops are off. It takes time to make the soil healthy, same as it takes time to make a man with arthritis healthy. It will outproduce if put on in the fall before. Our materials do not dissapate. They have substance. They multiply soil life which releases nutrients in the soil that were tied up by the chemicals, and they attract nitrogen out of the air. And the trillions of earthworms give the world's best manure free, and they loosen and aerate your soil. This is LOW INPUT farming at its best. It clicks with the new slogan being used these days, "Sustainable Agriculture," because it sustains soil and food consumers, rather than poisoning them and killing them. The promoters of it are on the right track. Popularity has changed — to low input farming.

Generations Of Farm Families

Meet two of your farm community neighbors and agricultural lending specialists - George Lewis and Don Eby.

George and Don are two of the most complimentary gentlemen you can get to know. George Lewis has experience in livestock and poultry farming and Don Eby has experience in dairy and general farming. Both men have a wide range of banking and lending experience to compliment their farming know-how. They have been active in agriculture and ag lending most of their lives.

Most important, George and Don are two of the easiest people to talk with, and as a team they handle just about anything that has to do with farming and ag lending. They are farmers talking with farmers about family farm finances.

Holstein Is Supreme Maryland Fair Cow

BY SUE CROW
Maryland Correspondent

TIMONIUM, MD — For the second year in a row a Holstein has won the coveted Richard N. Wills Trophy in the Maryland State Fair's dairy cattle competition. Gay Ridge Holsteins were the recipient of this year's award with their first-place four-year-old senior and grand champion winner, C Hanson Prestar Mona Lisa. She competed against the grand champion winners from the various colored breeds from the state fair's other open show classes. They included Ayrshire, Brown Swiss, Guernsey, Jersey and Milking Shorthorn cows.

Donald, Mary Louise and Greg Wilcom of Gay Ridge Holsteins from Ijamsville received the trophy from Margaret Wills in memory of her late husband, a state fair mainstay for years. Last year's winner was My Ladys-Manor Farm owned by Ross, Rob and Harold Smith.

Paul King, the judge of the Holstein show held prior to the competition, Jeff Myers from Del-Myr Farms, and Lowell Lindsay from United Breeders in Canada were judges for this event. This was the third year for this trophy.

The grand champions that Mona Lisa competed against were Three Springs Farm with their Milking Shorthorn, TS BR Jewel; Spring Valley Farm with their Jersey, Glen Isle SJ Hettie; Crown Stone Farm with their Guernsey, CS Jupiter Orchid; Long View Farm with their Brown Swiss, Indian Trail Improver Boots; and Maple Dell with their Ayrshire, Old Schoolboys Elegance.

Seeds, Miller Exhibit Supreme Dairy Champions At Allentown Fair

BY PAT PURCELL

ALLENTOWN (Lehigh Co.) — With the number of entries up in every livestock show, the Allentown Fair was literally bursting at the seams.

"We have a total of 1,247 animals on the fairgrounds and that is maximum capacity," said Sterling Ritter Livestock Superintendant. "We had to return entry forms for between 120 and 150 from all species. It's been a nightmare in some respects because it's meant working close to the clock on all the livestock shows."

Ritter's not complaining. When he became livestock superintendant five years ago, increasing entry numbers was a number one goal. Dairy animals increased by 44 to 128; hogs increased by 104 to 357; sheep increased by 95 to 552; and goats up by 11 to 181. When Ritter came to his position in 1984, entries topped off at 632.

In the dairy show held Wednesday, August 30, Mildred Seeds of Downingtown and Russel H. Miller of Tamaqua captured the supreme championships.

Dairy show judge Don Seipt of Keystone Farms in Easton, Pa., selected the strong, very dairy yearling Holstein bull of Miller's as the Allentown Fair 1989 Supreme Dairy Champion Bull. Seipt was impressed with the tremendous front end on the bull as well as its straightness over the top.

Top-O-Hill Milestone Cutie, a 4-year-old, owned by Seeds captured the 1989 Allentown Fair Supreme Dairy Cow banner on their excellence of her udder. Seipt pulled both the the grand champion Jersey and Holstein into the center of the ring. After some close scrutiny, Seipt tapped the Jersey.

"Both are outstanding animals with tremendous animals, but this Jersey, I believe can stand a lot more competition," said Seipt.

Barn Help Not Forgotten At All-American

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— All eyes at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show September 25-29 will be focused on the nation's elite dairy cattle here at the Farm Show Complex, for six breed shows and four sales.

But show officials aren't about to forget the herdsmen and barn help who handle the glamour cows, reports All-American manager Charles Itle. As many as 1000 are expected from 25 states and Canada.

Good things start happening for barn crews when cattle arrive, Itle points out. A host committee headed by John Walker, Pittsburgh, will be on hand to help exhibitors get cattle housed, locate such things as hotel rooms and feed, and assist in any emergencies.

Snacks won't be one of the problems, Itle notes. According to the show manager, breed associations and the All-American will provide a milk/coffee break between 6 and 7 a.m. in the Small Arena each morning complete with doughnuts.

From 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. each day, the All-American offers milk and cheese treats to sustain judges, herdsmen and others working dairy shows in the nearby Large Arena.

Herdsmen and their helpers really load up their plates Thursday as honored guests of the All-American at 7 p.m. Herdsmen's Buffet in the Small Arena. Class sponsors and herd owners also will be welcome.

According to buffet coordinator Nona Schwartzbeck of Union Bridge, MD, the first buffet was held last year and was an instant success.

"We planned for 500," she says, "653 showed up."

Menu this year includes fried chicken and barbecue ribs, potato salad, baked beans, cole slaw, make-your-own sundaes, coffee, milk and cold drinks.

Itle reports one herdsman also will go home $50 richer, thanks to the Good Housekeeping contest of the Pennsylvania Dairymen's Association. A committee will periodically score individual stall exhibits on such categories as housekeeping, attractiveness, condition of cattle, and attitude and spirit of cooperation.

Good housekeeping winners will be announced Friday, September 29, with top herdsman at the All-American receiving $50. Each outstanding breed exhibitor will win a plaque.

Dairy Products Dominate New York's Agriculture

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Dairy products accounted for 55 percent of New York's agricultural sales in 1987, figures from the Commerce Department's Census Bureau show. The milk cow total of 814,461 in 1987 was 7 percent below the 875,113 reported in 1982. Dairy products amounting to $1.3 billion were sold from 12,864 farms.

The 1987 Census of Agrigulture shows that New York's agricultural sales totaled $2.4 billion. Livestock, poultry, and their products accounted for $1.7 billion or 71 percent of total agricultural sales. Crops, including nursery and greenhouse products, accounted for $701 million or 29 percent of total agricultural sales.

The 37,743 New York farms counted in 1987 were 11 percent fewer than in 1982, when the last agriculture census was taken. Some 20,622 had 1987 sales of $10,000 or more, and 7,299 had sales of $100,000 or more.

Production expenditures for the state's agricultural operations came to $1.9 billion. Agricultural operators paid 13 percent less for commercial fertilizers, 8 percent more for agricultural chemicals, and 13 percent more for hired farm labor than they did in 1982. They spent 10 percent less for livestock and poultry feed.

For more information of published reports and machine readable data from the 1987 Census of Agriculture, and also data from previous agriculture censuses, contact the Agriculture Division, Bureau of the Census, Room 436, Iverson Mall, Washington, D.C. 20233, ATTN: Agriculture Information Specialist; or call (301) 763-1113.

More highlights from the 1987 Census of Agriculture for New York are listed on page 2. Dollar values in this release and on the fact sheet have not been adjusted for changes in price levels. Since sampling is used to collect data for selected items and to account for nonresponding farm operations, the results are subject to sampling variability as well as reporting and more coverage errors.

Farm & Land Statistics

• Some 32 percent of New York's farms were 180 to 499 acres, and 10 percent were 500 acres or more. The average size of a farm was 223 acres.

• The state's farms operators reported that crops were harvested from 3,899,819 acres in 1987 and that irrigated acres totaled 50,920. Irrigated land decreased 2 percent, and harvested cropland declined 12 percent between 1982 and 1987.

Crops

• The 1987 census shows hay was harvested from 2,259,119 acres, corn for grain from 598,815 acres, corn for silage from 525,458 acres, oats for grain from 162,733 acres, and vegetables for sale from 150,054 acres; land in orchards totaled 124,432 acres.

• Farms growing nursery and greenhouse crops, mushrooms, and sod for sale received $168.2 million for these products, up from $108.8 million in 1982.

Livestock, Animal Specialties And Their Products

• The cattle and calf inventory on the 22,250 farms reporting such stock totaled 1,603,309, down from 1982.

• Sales of poultry and their products totaled $90.3 million. Some 3,236 farms reported an inventory of 5,455,879 chickens three months old or older; 3,195 farms reported 4,688,275 hens and pullets of laying age; and 206 farms reported 1,713,646 broilers and other meat type chickens sold.

• The value of sales of fish and aquaculture products was $1.5 million in 1987.

• The state's agricultural operators reported an inventory of 62,978 bee colonies on 1,110 farms. Some 2,741,884 pounds of honey were sold in 1987.

Operator Characteristics

• The census shows that 85 percent of the state's agricultural operators with sales of $10,000 or more considered farming to be their principal occupation. Of the 5,928 agricultural operators with sales of $10,000 or more reporting off-farm work, 47 percent said they did such work 200 days or more.

• Some 85 percent of the farms were operated by individuals or families as sole proprietorships. Partnerships accounted for 10 percent. Of the 4 percent that were corporate farms, 91 percent were family operations.

• Women operated 2,736 farms and 151 farms were operated by minorities.

• The average age of New York farm operators was 51 years. About 46 percent, or 17,275 agricultural operators, were 35 to 54 years old.

Are you ready to start filling silos? Before doing so, check your corn fields. Will the fields that are left over after the silos are filled have time to mature before frost?

Many corn fields are maturing more slowly this year. Due to the cooler growing season, we were about two weeks behind in the accumulation of growing degree days as of the end of August. Late plantings are even further behind.

Once September arrives we accumulate growing degree days at a much slower rate. Consequently, corn will mature more slowly from now on. In other words, there simply may not be enough warm days and nights left to mature some corn before a killing frost.

Because of his, review your corn harvesting plans carefully. Will you need silo space for late corn? If so, you might want to save some early corn for grain rather than ensiling it. Immature corn will be harder to dry down, and it won't have as much feed value as well-eared silage. However, the difference in feed value may not be as great as you might expect, because much of the energy remains in the stalk until the ear matures.

Uncured Silage, Wet Silage and Green Chopped Corn

If you want to experience off-feed problems, low milk production, depressed fat tests and other metabolic problems, just feed your cows uncured silage, green-chopped corn, or wet highly-acid silage. These feeding problems are very costly and they are worth preventing.

Having extra silos to work with can help give you the flexibility you need to manage your feed supplies and your feeding program, but this option does not exist on every farm. Another alternative is to put up several weeks supply of silage in bags, piles, trenches, etc. so you can feed from it during silo filling and silage curing times.

Small temporary supplies of silage can be created in several ways. Chop a small amount of silage early in the season. Wait a few weeks for it to cure before ensiling the remainder of the crop. That way you will have cured silage to feed during the current harvest season. To help you through next year's harvest season, create a separate supply of silage this season, and feed from it as you fill your silos next year.

Johnsongrass and shattercane can be spread by harvesting equipment and by certain feed crops that mature later in the summer. There is some evidence to suggest that harder seeds can survive fermentation and digestion, and be spread by the manure.

If you need to buy some silage for this winter, consider buying it now to prevent all those extra losses in quality and dry matter which usually occur whenever silage is transferred.

Good Corn Crop + Poor Hay Crop = Ration Adjustments

The poor hay growing and harvesting conditions of 1989 left many farmers short on good quality haycrop forage. It appears that some of these losses will be made up by a good corn crop, and for that we are thankful. An alternative to buying high-priced, mediocre-quality hay is to feed more corn silage and more grain, but be careful. Excess grain and corn silage can cause costly feet and leg problems, digestive upsets, low fat tests, etc.

Forage quality will vary considerably this year. Therefore, test all forages and determine which groups of animals can make the best use of each kind of forage that is available for you to use. If you make adjustments to the ration, acclimate cows slowly and work closely with your nutritionist and veterinarian.

York Fair Is Where Country Meets The City

Although the thrills and chills of the midway draw many people to the York Fair, the heart and soul of the event is still agricultural. This year during the unique nine days (September 8-16) when the country meets the city, fair goers can enjoy a variety of rural attractions.

Horticultural Hall, located in the northeast corner of the Fairgrounds, is the place for exhibits from the bountiful farms, fields and kitchens of the Mid-Atlantic region. It is here where growers enter their prize fruits and vegetables, including Pennsylvania's largest pumpkin, and compete for York Fair and Guinness World records to win as much as $1,000 in premiums.

The shelves in the Hall are stacked with canned fruits, vegetables, and meats, as well as jams, jellies, marmalades, preserves and butters made with fruit from A (Apple) to Q (Quince).

Tempting pies, breads, candies, cookies and beautifully decorated cakes are always popular displays. "Our Best Cherry Pie" along with the "Blue Ribbon Apple Pie Contest" and the "Great American Apple Dumpling Contest" attract hundreds of entries. All winners receive cash awards and the first place winner in the apple pie contest will go on to compete at the Pennsylvania Farm Show this coming January.

A relatively new and growing category is homemade wines. Amateur wine makers submit entries produced from grapes, fruits, vegetables, grains, blossoms, honey or blend of any of these. Wine judging begins Monday, September 11 at 10 a.m.

The Grange, a national fraternal association of farmers, is well represented in Horticultural Hall. With their detailed exhibits of the products of farm life, including their largest and best from the land and home, the York County Grange Associations are an important source of agricultural information and expertise. This year's displays will reflect the 1989 theme "The Best Time You'll Have All Year."

If spending time admiring luscious produce has made people hungry for fresh fruits and vegetables, there is no need to leave Horticultural Hall empty handed. A Farm Fresh Market Stand sells many of the same types of seasonal favorites that are on exhibit so that visitors have a nice selection to choose from.

The Pumpkin Tent, located just outside Horticultural Hall, will be filled with hundreds of pumpkins grown and decorated by York County school children and these entries are always charming and creative.

A new addition to the 1989 York Fair is a "Scarecrow" Contest for students in the Middle Schools, grades 6 through 8. Winners will receive a trophy for their school and ribbons for the student(s) who created the prize winning entry. For complete information, contact the York Fair Office 717/848-2596.

Adjacent to Horticultural Hall, Old Main is filled with a veritable treasure trove of items reflecting the creativity and skill of numerous craftspeople. Needlework with such intriguing names as candlewickery and chicken scratch can be found here as well as woodwork, leather tooling, stencilling, sgraffito, basketry and many other handicrafts.

For those who enjoy watching skilled craftspeople at work, the Crafts and Demonstrations Theater is the place to visit. A variety of events takes place daily and demonstrations can range from needlecrafts, cake decorating, and even bee keeping. Other interesting attractions are the Antique Farm Machinery demonstrations. An operative wheat thresher, straw baler, corn grinder and tractors all provide an educational look at our agricultural past.

Moving away from the home centered crafts and out to the livestock barns, visitors to the Fair get a real taste, feel, look, listen and smell of country life.

"During the York Fair, in what is the East's largest livestock show, the public gains a real appreciation for the work involved in raising animals," observes John Smith, who with Mike Rutter, are the fair managers in charge of livestock. Whether it is a young 4-H member showing for the first time or a seasoned exhibitor, there is a tremendous amount of skill and preparation that takes place before even entering the show ring. It is interesting to watch the various animals being bathed, brushed, braided, curried and possibly sheared in hopeful anticipation of a coveted blue ribbon.

One of the more unique livestock show ring events is the "York County Hog Driving Contest" which will be held Saturday, September 16 at 10 a.m. Contestants (men, women and youths 16 and under) are judged on the amount of time it takes to move a hog a specified distance and the hog drivers may use any costume or clothing to "motivate" the hog.

Baby animals are appealing to everyone and the York County 4-H groups will again be sponsoring their wonderful petting zoo. People can also get a glimpse of newborn calves, piglets and lambs as they stroll through the livestock barns.

No trip to the barnyard would be complete without a look at some poultry. The Poultry Building contains a great collection of roosters, chickens, ducks and geese and there is even an incubator where chicks can be seen hatching from eggs. A pond with baby ducks sliding down a slide, pigeons, hamsters, guinea pigs, and adorable rabbits are also some of the exhibits of smaller animals featured in this building.

The York Fair definitely reflects its rich agricultural heritage throughout the fairgrounds with the tremendous variety of exhibits, displays, and demonstrations. The York Fair runs September 8-16.

ensiling annual crops such as corn and grasses, including certain weeds, especially when grown under stressed conditions on nitrogen-rich soils. This year, silo gasses were even produced by some alfalfa haylages, probably because they contained more weed grasses.

The problem of silo gas is most severe during the first few weeks after filling. It is a gas that can cause permanent lung damage -- and death -- and needs to be taken seriously. The effect of silo gas is cumulative. Once exposed to it, people have lower tolerance levels in the future.

Silo gas is yellowish brown in color and heavier than air. Therefore, it lingers on top of the silage, floats down silo chutes, accumulating at the base of silos, in feed rooms and in stalls adjacent to silo rooms. It has a "biting" odor that causes people and animals to cough. If dead birds are found at the base of silo chutes, suspect the presence of gas.

To reduce the risk of exposure to gasses, aerate feed rooms and stables well. Before entering a silo, run the silo blower or a fan, or wear a respirator.

Protein-Enriched Corn Silage

If you've been depending on hay or haylage to meet much of your protein needs in previous years, but are coming up short this year, one way to reduce protein purchases is to treat corn silage at harvest time with anhydrous ammonia.

Anhydrous ammonia is a good and economical source of protein -- if applied and used properly. It is also a good preservative. Because of this, it can reduce dry matter and spoilage losses in the silo and improve the bunk life of silage.

On the other hand, anhydrous ammonia is dangerous to work with. Therefore, be safety conscious; wear protective clothing and have water nearby. Before treating corn silage with anhydrous ammonia, be sure you are working with a nutritionist who can balance rations well, especially for soluble protein and carbohydrates.

When comparing feed prices, consider the cost of tying up money when you buy protein at ensiling time, rather than as you need it. Also remember that the hay and protein supplements you may have been feeding probably contained numerous vitamins and minerals; anhydrous ammonia does not; their cost needs to be considered too.

Anhydrous ammonia has an affinity for moisture. It attaches well to silage that has 60 to 70% moisture. Below 60%, losses increase. The suggested rate of application is 7 lbs. of anhydrous ammonia per ton of 65% moist silage.

Ammonia is also highly soluble in the rumen, but this is not necessarily a problem. Rumen bacteria need some soluble nitrogen, but excess accumulations are toxic. To "capture" and utilize the soluble nitrogen that is present in the rumen, and to help prevent toxic buildups, rumen bacteria need a readily available supply of carbohydrates -- but not too much, because excess soluble carbohydrates can cause acidosis. Thus, it is very important to balance rations properly, regulating the amount of soluble protein and carbohydrate in the ration, plus the time and order in which cows should receive them.

During the fermentation process some plant proteins in feeds are converted to soluble protein. When a non-protein-nitrogen (NPN) additive with a preservative activity, such as anhydrous ammonia, is added to corn silage it helps to prevent the conversion of plant protein to soluble protein. Consequently, the amount of soluble protein in ammonia-treated silage is not much different than that of untreated silage.

This is not true of other NPN additives, such as urea, which do not possess silage preservative characteristics. When added to silage, they can increase the levels of soluble protein. For this reason, many people who use urea prefer to mix it with the grain. This gives them more opportunity to control soluble protein levels in the ration, because once urea is added to silage it is harder to remove from the ration.

Do not add NPN to silage if it is present in the grain mix, or if other forages and feed ingredients are high in NPN or soluble protein.

TB and Johne's Disease

The recent outbreak of TB and the presence of Johne's disease remind us of the constant need for tight biosecurity measures on our farms. The TB organism is shed in the feces, urine and milk, and through nasal and vaginal discharges. Johne's organisms also can be spread to calves and heifers through the feces of older cattle.

As show and sale cattle move onto and off the farm, be concerned about the cleanliness of transport vehicles and exposed to other animals. Remember, health charts are no guarantee that animals are not infected; they merely indicate that infection is unlikely. Avoid tracking manure from farm to farm, and from older cattle to younger cattle. Have visitors sanitize their footwear and keep them out of feed alleys. Move your breeding charts to a safe location. Be sure to consult your veterinarian on these and other herd health matters.

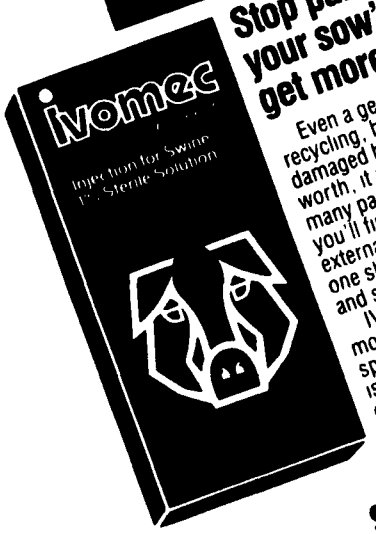
Baby Boom.

Stop parasites from stealing your sow's nutrition and you could get more weaned pigs.



Even a genetically advanced sow can have trouble recycling, breeding and carrying a litter if she's been damaged by parasites. So, considering what a litter is worth, it makes good business sense to control as many parasites as possible. Check all the labels and you'll find no product controls as many internal and external parasites as IVOMEC® (ivermectin) with one shot, including the costly threadworm (adult and somatic stages).

IVOMEC is administered by injection, assuring more accurate dosage when compared with sprays, dips and pour-ons. If one square inch is missed while spraying, thousands of eggs could be missed, and it only takes a few to reinfect your operation.

Pick the product that offers the most assurance. Remember, less parasites could mean more pigs.

FARM MANAGEMENT

By Bruce Kreider
Farm Management Agent
Farm Labor Management Series No.9

Clear communication is one of the most difficult challenges we face in life. Whether communicating with a spouse, an employee or the parts person at the local machinery dealership, what we say can be misunderstood. We must communicate clearly if we expect satisfactory results from our work force.

Why Don't We Communicate Well?

We are in a hurry. Too often, instructions on field-work are barked out as the boss heads for the fields. If the employees have a question, or didn't hear part of the instructions over the roar of the engine, they must flag the boss down and tolerate his or her impatience in order to find out how to do their job. Good communication takes time. Unless you plan on working alone, you must plan to spend the time needed to give clear direction to the work force.

We have different experiences

Communication involves two or more persons, each having a unique view of the world around them. We interpret what another person says based on our experience. For example, the inexperienced farm worker is often confused because farmers use a different language. A sow can be in heat in a snow storm and a dry cow could be springing on a rainy summer day.

Limit the amount of jargon you use. Employers also must assume that the worker needs training until proven otherwise. Even the experienced worker may have been trained to do a job very differently from how you like it done.

We hear what we want to hear

We often interpret what another says or does according to our own viewpoint. For example, you provide for employees housing that is close and convenient to the farm. You figure that it is a major savings for them in cost of living and in travel time to work. Your employees, however, may think that you provide housing in order to monitor their lifestyle and to make sure they get to work on time.

We communicate with far more than words

The expression on our face, the tone of our voice and the place we choose for conversations all add another dimension to our communication. These non-verbal signs can confuse the other person. Encouraging words said with a frown on our face are seldom believed to be sincere.

Few of us can pretend to listen to someone speak, without them knowing we aren't paying attention. Recognize that you "speak" in many ways, so use all means of communication to achieve the desired goal.

Listening is hard work

It is easy for employers to become absorbed with their own thoughts and problems. Additionally, if you are the boss, it is easy to assume that you do the talking and your employees do the listening. Many employees feel that the boss cares little about their thoughts about their job, even if they are more familiar with a certain job than the boss.

How Do We Improve Communication?

1. Give clear instructions. Clear instructions involve much more than barking out orders. The supervisor needs to be specific about the task at hand: who will do what when and where it should be done and what tools will be used to accomplish the job. The supervisor needs to get feedback to make sure that the employee(s) understand the instructions. Also, the employee should be encouraged to ask questions about the job without being made to feel stupid.

2. Be available regularly. Farm employees appreciate a supervisor who listens to their concerns and suggestions about the job at hand. The best farm employers set aside a regular time when their employees know that the boss is available to hear their concerns. This should take place in a private, non-threatening environment. A walk through the field or a seat on the picnic table with a cup of coffee

FmHA Farm Borrowers Invited To Meeting

LEWISBURG (Union Co.)— Union/Snyder County farmers with loans from the Farmers Home Administration are invited to a meeting on September 22 on how FmHA's computer program is used in considering loan servicing options such as rescheduling and write-downs, FmHA Acting County Supervisor Chip A. Weaver said today.

The meeting will be at 10:30 a.m. at the Brynwood Inn, Route 11 & 15, Lewisburg, PA.

Mr. Weaver said the meeting is particularly important for FmHA borrowers behind in their payments and those having difficulty with their loans.

"We will go over all the options available to those borrowers and explain how to go about finding one that will keep them in operation," Mr. Weaver said.

Mr. Weaver said DALR$ does many mathematical calculations quickly and in a number of combinations in helping in the analysis of farm financial plans.

"If a restructuring plan exists that will keep the borrower on the farm, DALR$ will find that plan, and that plan will minimize the cost of debt restructuring," Mr. Weaver said.

BST Research

wrong to give the injection if it was administered properly so as not to harm the cow.

"We take some comfort in this report and believe a large marjority of Americans do not agree with the animal rights' cause," he said. "At least not with the more extreme elements of the group."

BST is a natural protein that is produced in the pituitary gland of all cattle. Like other proteins, BST is composed of various amino acids. It helps to coordinate energy from feed allocated to meet a cow's physical needs such as growth in young animals and milk production in mature animals.

Supplemental BST stimulates cows to produce more milk from a proportionately smaller increase in feed consumption. With supplemental BST, less feed is required to produce a pound of milk.

Peak milk production is normally reached in the second to third month of the 10-month lactation period. Production then tapers off until lactation finally ceases. Supplemental BST extends the duration of near-peak milk production consistent with the cows genetic and environmental potential.

Current scientific thinking is that BST is generated in the pituitary and released into the bloodstream. In mature animals, "Mammary Receptors" are activated as cows complete pregnancy. These receptors help direct food energy into milk production.

It is known that cows receiving supplemental BST consume more feed. Additional feed consumption and milk production are related to the amount of BST administered. BST therefore stimulates the cow to provide more milk, which prompts the cow to eat more to provide the necessary extra food energy. More of that energy is directed into milk production rather than body maintenance.

The group of editors visited both the Monsanto Life Sciences Research Center where more than 1,000 scientists and support personnel study the chemical and biological factors that control the growth, development and health of plants and animals and the Dardenne Technical Center where a 900-acre farm is devoted to research in the animal sciences.

"The response to BST is immediate and the drop off in production after the last treatment is also noticeable."—Bill Thomas

At the Life Sciences Center they concentrate on three areas: agriculture, animal nutrition, health and human health care. In one of the four research buildings, scientists study plant growth. Laboratories, growth chambers and greenhouses are all in the same facility, connected by computer terminals, for ease of organization and maximum results.

Using 123 computer-controlled "growth chambers," researchers can duplicate any climate in the world, from the desert to rain to rain forest. Studies are leading to new herbicides and new chemicals to improve crop yields and control weeds. More than two dozen highly sophisticated greenhouses sit atop this building, allowing Monsanto researchers to grow plants using natural sunlight supplemented by electric lights. Special temperature controls eliminate even normal fluctuations of the thermostat.

In another section of the building, workers efficiently fill scientists' individual prescriptions for soil. Automated potting equipment can fill 3,600 six-inch pots per hour. Figured conservatively, the machines can mix three tons of soil per day.

At the Dardenne research farm, dairy cattle, poultry and swine currently are the focus of the research. About 200 cows, all involved in the BST tests, are milked in the double herringbone parlor. The parlor is heated and air-conditioned to reduce stress on the cows, not to mention the workers.

Milk that meets FDA requirements for human consumption as safe and wholesome is pumped into the bulk tank across the hall and sold to a dairy cooperative to become part of the local dairy supply.

More than 600 animals, including heifers and calves, are part of the studies being conducted at Dardenne. Two tie stall barns, each with 17,000 square-feet, evaporative cooling equipment and flush gutter systems to keep animals cool and clean, house the lactating cows. An adjoining 14,000-square feet free-stall barn has been converted from a heifer barn to a lactating cow farm too. Still another barn contains a special maternity area, equipped with evaporative cooling and comnplete with closed circuit cameras so the cows can be monitored at all times.

Cows at Dardenne exercise daily on dirt lots adjacent to the barns. These lots have water for the cows to drink and sheltered areas to shield them from the elements.

Animal nutritionists formulate and monitor the cows' diets. Cows are fed twice daily by a motorized vehicle equipped with scale, minicomputer and a TMR mixer to match each cow's diet plan.

Cows are fed as much as they want. Feed left over is vacuumed up and the amount is fed into the computer system to determine the feed-to-milk production ratio.

"What we see with BST is like starting the lactation over again in the middle."—Gary Hartnell

Because Dardenne is a state-of-the-art dairy research facility, computers play a major role in everyday activities. A data entry room is manned by employees seven days a week. The computers are linked with others at the Life Sciences Center. As part of the good laboratory practices required by the FDA, all computerized data are backed up by handwritten raw data.

BST can be produced in commercial quantity using recombinant DNA technology. The gene responsible for natural BST production in dairy cows has been isolated and can be transferred to ordinary bacteria cells. The bacteria are used to produce large quantities of BST through standard fermentation techniques. The bacteria are then killed and the BST is separated, highly purified and formulated for use. The area in which BST is made looks like the fermentation equipment in a brewery.

Human and short-term animal safety data have been compiled and submitted to the FDA. Long-term animal safety and efficiency trials are continuing to veify observations that BST has no adverse health effects on cows and to gather data to assure maximum on-farm effectiveness. FDA is expected to rule on the registration and commercial availability of BST in about a year.

The effects of BST on dairy cow milk production are observed at the milking parlor at Monsanto Company's research farm near St. Louis.

Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Roundup Features Quality Cows

CREAMERY (Montgomery Co.) — The Montgomery County 4-H Dairy Roundup was held Friday, August 18, at the Montgomery County 4-H Center as part of the 4-H Fair. A total of 42 animals with all six major dairy breeds represented were exhibited by 18 members of the Western Montgomery - Berks 4-H Dairy Club. The dairy cattle were judged for type (body structure) and fitting (how well the animal is groomed). In addition, each 4-H'er was judged on their ability to show their bovine during the contest.

This year, animals exhibited by Cindy Moser of Barto and Brenda Wolfgang of Bechtelsville were the Holstein champion and reserve champion, respectively. Champion and reserve champion for the five colored breeds are as follows: Ayrshire, Amy and Seth Wolfgang; Brown Swiss, Susan Slater of Perkiomenville and Cindy Moser; Guernsey, Karen and Brenda Wolfgang; Jersey, Susan Slater and Danielle Breaux of Salfordville; Milking Shorthorn, Danielle Breaux.

The fitting and showing portion of the dairy show was divided into two age groups, juniors are between the ages of eight and 14 and seniors are from 15 to 19. Both the junior fitting and showman awards was won by Danielle Breaux.

Karen Wolfgang won second place in junior fitting, while Paul Plummer of Chalfont won second place in the junior showman contest. For the senior 4-H'ers, Amy and Brenda Wolfgang won first and second place in the fitting contest, and Cindy Moser and Susan Slater won first and second place in the showman contest, respectively.

All participants of the 4-H dairy show were required to complete a project book for each animal. The 4-H dairy experience helps teach the basics in how to care for animals and some of the economics involved with raising dairy animals. For more information on Montgomery County's 4-H dairy program contact Tim Fritz at 489-4315.

The winners in the junior fitting contest were, from left, Karen Wolfgang, second place, and Danielle Breaux, first place. With them is Montgomery County Dairy Princess Amy Wolfgang.

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Jamie Hartman of St. Thomas walked off with the top awards in the Holstein portion of the 33rd Annual Franklin County 4-H Dairy Show August 22. His five-year-old Higher View Astro Matt daughter was named senior and grand champion of the show, while his four-year-old, San-D-K Jemini DJ earned the reserve senior and reserve grand champion trophies.

The grand champion, Meadow Vu Astro Bess, is classified 86 points and is milking 93 pounds a day. As a three-year-old, she made 16,731 pounds of milk and 636 pounds of fat. She was bred by Robert Eckstine of Meadow Vu Farm, Mercersburg.

The reserve champion is a Shardale Arlinda Chief Jemini daughter.

Hartman, 15, was also named Grand Champion Showman of the event, held during the Franklin County Fair at the Chambersburg Rod and Gun Club. He is the son of Carl and Deanna Hartman.

The reserve junior champion, Oakleigh Gold Damon Agnes, was also shown by Hartman. Bred by E.J. and J.C. Brake of Oakleigh Farms, Mercersburg, Agnes is an intermediate yearling.

Megan Meyers of St. Thomas showed the junior champion, Ro-Meyer Jingles Valiant Russ, a senior calf.

In the Jersey portion of the show, Denise Martin of Pleasant Valley Jerseys, Chambersburg, again walked Pleasant Valley Superb Cashew to victory. Named Supreme Champion of the 1989 Farm Show, Cashew, a six-year-old, received the senior and grand champion trophies at the county show, and was also named Best Bred and Owned Animal of the show.

A four-year-old also shown by Denise, Pleasant Valley Master Royal, received reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors.

BROWN SWISS

Atlantic's Local To Meet

SOUTHAMPTON (Bucks Co.) — The Big Valley Local of Atlantic Dairy Cooperative will hold its fall business meeting Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m. at the Charlais Restaurant in Belleville.

The purpose of the meeting is to elect officers, delegates and alternate delegates for the coming year. In addition, an update will be given on cooperative business.

Atlantic Dairy Cooperative represents nearly 3,700 dairy farm families in Pennsylvania, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

MANAGE MENT

may fit the bill perfectly. The employee should know that he or she can express themselves freely without it counting against them.

Listen to all suggestions without feeling that you must respond.

3. Focus on things you can change. Because of the variety of people with whom you regularly deal, accept that misunderstandings are inevitable. When they happen, spend more time correcting future behavior than casting blame around. It is too easy for employers and employees to take things personally and get defensive about any problem on the farm. Such an environment paralyzes the work force and lowers productivity.

4. Be positive. Successful farmers know how to think positively. Employees appreciate the same touch when it comes to on-the-job relations. If you "catch the employee at something good" occasionally, and commend them for their extra effort, they are usually more receptive when you need to correct their work.

5. See the job through their eyes. All of this discussion on communications can be summed up by placing yourself in the employees shoes. We all like to be treated as if we are important. We all like some say in how our our work is done. We all like to be shown appreciation when we do well. Farm labor managers who understand the job to be done and the needs of their employees will find communication to be a manageable challenge on their farms.

Next week: Supervision and Delegation.

Second National Egg Producer Survey Completed

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Pennsylvania egg producers have completed their second national producer survey. This survey was a follow-up to the opinion survey, which drew responses from 60 percent of the producers representing 90 percent of the nation's production.

The first survey showed a significant interest in pursuing a national effort to stabilize egg prices. The second survey, developed by Penn State University, was aimed at determining the level of financial commitment that producers would pledge. The survey also asked producers who they believed could best represent the producer's interest.

Based upon the returns, approximately 26 percent of the 1,600 surveyed responded. About 66 percent still indicated a national effort was appropriate. Of those favoring a national effort, 86 percent of the producers representing 66 million birds, would be willing to pay one cent per bird to a national program development. These producers prefer to pay on installment tied to the program's progress and to a specific financial goal. Fifty percent felt that two cents per dozen was appropriate. An additional 34 percent indicate funding should be from one to five cents per dozen.

Mini Horses Are Fun, But That's Just The Beginning

(By Marianne Walker, Centre County Correspondent)

LINDEN HALL — A recent visit to a local miniature horse farm—no, not a pony farm, but a miniature horse farm—brought to mind a comment once made to me by a weary dairy farmer. "Well, there's farming for money, and then there's farming with money," he had scoffed, referring to a neighboring executive who part-time farmed on quite a grand scale. This is surely "farming with money," I mused as I surveyed the Bill Hylbert and Ginger Grieco farm. In the construction phase was a "complex" as I termed it: a huge structure that consists of a dwelling for Bill, Ginger, and daughter Lindsey; an apartment for their caretakers; a pool; a tack room; stables; and a riding arena. And, then there were their professions. Bill is a psychiatrist, Ginger has a private dental practice.

All right, sure, these tiny horses are a nice little diversion for them, I further surmised. This place is a get-away-from-the-office retreat. The "minis" are their toys; they sure do remind one of teddy bears, anyway. Well, initial impressions are seldom valid, and although I'm a former horse person, an evening spent with Bill and Ginger dispelled all of my opinions that this operation was for them simply fun and games.

Bill and Ginger may be doctors by profession, but this herd of 25 miniature horses is their passion. It shows in Ginger's eyes when she stressed "breeding for what's right, not what's cute" and in Bill's voice when he spoke with pride of the wide spectrum of color possessed by their animals. And, although they obviously love each and every animal dearly, Grieco and Hylbert are in the miniature horse business for the same reason that many of the approximately 3,000 members of the American Miniature Horse Association pursue minis: they're profitable.

With a good, small stallion bringing as much as $250,000, serious horsemen are stopping to take a second look at these tiny equines. Bill explained that he and Ginger originally purchased their first minis in 1985 to offset the costs of her "big horses," her Thoroughbreds and Lipizan/Percherons. "They came along as a way to basically make a business out of horses. The market for big horses is awful . . . well, maybe I shouldn't say that . . . the market for them is basically saturated."

The current market for miniature horses is far from awful. Their prices have approximately doubled over the past four years, according to Bill. "A horse we bought for $1,500 in '85, the breeder now will buy back for $3,000. This is true for the entire market. In fact, prices may be doubling in one year alone," he stated.

And, as prices have increased over the years, so have the number of miniatures. American Miniature Horse Association statistics for this year show that their registry contains 31,296 animals; 10 years ago, that number was just 7,250. Maybe the combined increase of prices and supply of miniatures has led to recent articles in such publications as the "Wall Street Journal" and the "New York Times," which tout minis as solid investments. Undoubtedly, minis have "arrived."

The AMHA traces the history of their horses to English and Dutch mine horses that were imported to the U.S. in the 19th Century and utilized in Appalachian coal mines until as late as the 1950s. Ginger shared that these sturdy little work horses were so acclimated to the mines that upon seeing the light of day, they often retreated quickly to the blackness of the underground.

Bill Hylbert and Ginger Grieco built this complex with their horses and their family in mind: it houses a residence for them and one for their caretaker, an indoor riding arena, stables, tack room, and pool.

Bill is quick to add that the history behind this animal has led to its irresistable personality. "Given that minis have been domesticated, their personalities are . . . well, they were bred for personality and strength," he said. Bill's view is not simply that of a biased horse breeder.

The origins of today's miniatures also trace to the Shetland pony, with the AMHA now recognizing two main body types: "draft" and "refined." The dichotomy of the two types is quite evident on the Hylbert/Grieco herd. Misty Blue, a fine-boned, elegant gray mare, which happens to be the most expensive animal on the farm, resembles a tiny Arabian. Several of the foundation mares are from what is known as the Smith/McCoy line. They are much more compact and sturdy, but nonetheless, beautiful. "Our intention is to breed for some specific trait," asserted Bill. Totally against line breeding, the couple has purchased animals in eight states, focusing on a large gene pool.

Although Bill and Ginger have had a well-laid plan for the development of their herd, they are quick to admit that they've erred along the way. "The first horses that we bought were $1,500 and the last one we bought was almost $11,000. If I had it to do over again, I'd buy only expensive animals. You get what you pay for," admitted Bill.

Misty Blue, which happens to be the most expensive animal in the Grieco/Hylbert herd, is very definitely the Arab type: she has a very fine bone structure and a certain elegance about her; she doesn't remind you of a work horse, that's for sure!

This tiny pinto filly shows the color that's extremely popular in mini circles right now. Bill says that color preference among miniature horse enthusiasts tends to be "faddy," and pintos are now "the in thing!"

The AMHA has a 34-inch height limitation for registry, and this constraint brings problems that other horse breeders need not consider. "You don't breed just to produce animals," affirms Ginger, explaining that irreputable miniature breeders breed small horses regardless of the conformation of the animals.

"Refinement" is a word used by the AMHA when discussing the future of the minis, and it's a word Ginger Grieco repeats frequently. A fanatic about conformation, she is firm in her projections for the future: "I don't think you can really appreciate a mini until you've worked with big horses," she said. "All the things you hold important in a large horse, you should see in your mini," she furthered. Ginger credits her knowledge of conformation to Linda Will, a hunter/jumper trainer from Milroy. "Thanks to Linda, I can go out and start competing," she smiled.

Bill and Ginger plan to begin campaigning their miniatures next spring, making it a family affair with daughter, Lindsey. Two of their animals already have accumulated impressive show points, and Bill and Ginger are anxious to establish the show careers of several of their young animals. Conformation is emphasized at miniature horse shows, and color is much more important than it is in big horse competitions. The Hylbert/Grieco herd displays a virtual kaleidoscope of color from the dappled purplish tan of their stallion to the strawberry roan pinto of their tiny colt, J.C. Stetson.

Movement is probably not as critical with minis as with other horses, although it does come into play in the driving and jumping classes, two areas in which Ginger intends to compete. Because minis are too small to be ridden except by very small children, they are jumped on a line, unmounted. "Ideally, the best horse you could possibly have would be one that won in conformation and hunter/jumper or driving," Ginger pointed out.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Ah, woe is me, for the upcoming days of chaos and upheaval cannot be denied. Or averted.

Sure enough, we missed the ending of the world again. That was scheduled to have taken place in the predictions of one noted "foresee-er" on the first of September. Which has obviously come and gone, leaving us all still here doing our thing.

But, indeed, the time of another cataclysmic event is upon us, which shall wreck havoc and destruction in our lives, and cannot be avoided.

Well, temporarily at least.

"I've got to call for health charts," observed the Farmer at breakfast one recent morning, half talking to himself, half commenting on the impending chaos.

Outside, the early morning sun was already brilliant. But an ominous steam hung over the ponds and the black finger of the large thermometer on the back porch pointed at 55 degrees.

"You'll freeze your fannies sleeping at the fair next week, unless it warms up some," I predicted, taking comfort in the likelihood that my overnight presence with the show cattle would not be needed.

Instead, I become the daily transporter of the chaos support system, the bringer of the clean, the new, the dry, the nutritious (and the junk food), and the remover of the used, the dirty, the soggy, and the unwanted.

Bulk of the big ticket show equipment goes by the pickup and cattle trailer. An initial delivery to the fair's long barns transports a convoy of bales of hay and straw, showbox, feed tubs, buckets, hoses, milking equipment, shovels, brooms, forks and my favorite lawn rake, no doubt.

Wedged somewhere in with this conglomeration will be one concession to comfort and his occasional back problems - the Farmer's folding show bed and foam mattress, replete with cobwebs and dust from the previous show.

But most of the personal comfort necessities for a show stay must be hunted down and piled by the front door from scattered hiding spots through the four stories of the house.

Down from the attic come the picnic cooler, thermal water jug, farm name banner and sleeping bags to combat chilly, damp nights spent in an open-air barn. From the basement are retrieved folding tables and chairs, crockpot, coffeepot. Show clothing, tablecloths, name signs, decorations, paper towels, extra shoes add layers to the accumulation which is packed up and moved in.

Ongoing daily shipments of fresh sandwiches, fruit, fresh chunks of ice, clean clothes and dry shoes make the ten-mile "in" shuttle, replaced on the "out" trip by soggy sneakers, sweaty show shirts, balled-up, manure-splattered jeans, and a crockpot in need of refueling.

Bulk of the chaos support system supply line passes not only through the ground level of the house, but the interior of my car as well. In a successful stint of fair supply restocking, the iced tea won't leak nor the sauerkraut and hotdogs spill from an imbalanced crockpot onto the car's carpeted floor. In years of lesser luck, the results hang around awhile to reinforce one's misjudgement in supply transport.

Even after it's all over, it isn't all over.

The chaos continues in reverse mode. To be backhauled ... cleaned up ... packed away ... pitched out. The cows are easy; they charge back to their familiar stalls and herdmates, with almost visible sighs of relief. Equipment, tubs, tools, etc. go to the bankbarn floor, for retrieval as needed.

But all the "people" stuff lands right back in the kitchen, crying out for hot water, soap, bleach. Showring sawdust and gravel bits crunch under each footstep between laundry pile and kitchen sink. And return trips to distant nooks and corners, from attic to back basement, seem endless.

Eventually order overcomes the chaos and the mess. We gather at the table to sort the accumulated mail of the week. And, usually it will be there.

An entry for showing cattle at the January Farm Show.

Grocers Celebrate Food Festival

EPHRATA (Lancaster Co.) — Area grocery stores are teaming up with the American Heart Association to give shoppers some pointers on heart-healthy eating.

The joint effort is in celebration of the Heart Association's fifth annual Food Festival — a nutrition awareness event adopted by restaurateurs and grocers throughout the nation. This year, Food Festival takes place from September 10-16 with the theme "Trim the Fat and Cut Cholesterol for Life."

The week's activities will enlighten people about the many positive effects of eating right. They will address why it is vitally important to stay away from foods high in sodium, saturated fat and cholesterol. These three dietary culprits are major contributors to heart disease, which kills far more Americans than any other cause of death.

For this reason, local grocers are taking part in Food Festival by offering helpful nutrition literature and Cart Smart Shopping Tours to their customers. The tours are guided through store aisles by registered dietitians. They focus on how to choose heart-healthy foods and interpret product ingredient labels. Tour size is limited, so those interested should call the Heart Association at 393-0725 to register. Cost of the tour is $5.00 per person.

Food Festival participating stores in Lancaster County include: Giant, Centerville Road and Stone Mill Plaza; Weis, Bridgeport, Golden Triangle and Mt. Joy; Willow Valley Market; Stauffer's of Kissel Hill, Lititz; Oregon Dairy, Oregon Pike; John Herr Village Market, Millersville.

Mini Horses Are Fun

"Regardless of what we say about color, conformation, and all that stuff, if it 'ain't' under 34", you might as well forget it," Bill emphatically stated. Animals that mature to the 34+ to 38-inch range are eligible for registry in the American Miniature Horse Registry, the "B" registry, and demand for this size mini is not nearly as high as it is for the "As."

When asked whether he worried about the miniatures being a passing fancy, Bill was frank: "I worry about it, but not a whole lot. If I had concerns, I'd get out of the business right now." Most miniature buyers are miniature breeders, Ginger explained, "It's like stamp collecting, and the goal is to make your stamp collection better."

Bill and Ginger would like to expand their market to pet purchasers. "They're really great for a family—they're safe," he states. Miniatures make great companions for people who have just one horse, and they can also be used for teaser stallions for full-sized horses. Considering the low feed costs for minis and their docile personalities, the pet market seems ideal.

Hylbert and Grieco also would like to develop a "down-sized" Welsh pony, by combining miniatures with these larger animals, resulting in a pony that would be approximately 10 hands in height. "This would be the perfect size for kids," says Ginger.

I asked Bill and Ginger of their hopes for the miniature business 10 years down the road. "You come back in 10 years," Ginger exclaimed with a wide grin, "you won't believe our animals." Actually, I don't know if I'll be able to stay away for 10 days. I have become enchanted by these lovable, gorgeous, half-pints. They don't threaten as big horses might, and they capture your attention, or should I admit that they almost demand it! I found them irresistable. I think you would too!

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

Last week my husband, Allen, and I had a day away from the farm. We took a bus tour to Cape May, New Jersey.

Our first stop was Leming's Run Botanical Gardens. Here a number of small gardens were planted beside a pond or near a small bridge. We were promised "thousands of hummingbirds" but were lucky to catch a glimpse of one or two.

There was a colonial farm with a vegetable garden and some farm animals. They had cotton and tobacco growing there also. There were only two vegetables that I didn't have in my own garden — my salsify did not come up and I didn't plant hot peppers.

And then there was the always present gift shop with dried flowers and gifts. The basket arrangements were very beautiful.

We had a pleasant lunch at the Avalon Country Club and met some folks from our own area who happened to be there too. They had attended our local high school and worked for a developer in our county.

The next stop was historic Cold Spring Village three miles north of Cape May City. Here a number of 18th and 19th century Cape May County buildings was open for inspection. They were saved from destruction and restored on a 25-acre plot. We saw a school being rebuilt, a pottery, blacksmith shop, basket maker's shop, weaving shop and many others. One man was making brooms which were for sale. Then we treated ourselves to ice cream cones while we looked over their "heirloom garden" of local crops.

It was a long ride home. I've spent 22 hours on buses in the last three weeks and that is about as much as I can take for a while.

Claysburg Holds 59th Farm Show

CLAYSBURG (Blair Co.) — The 59th annual Claysburg Farm Show will be held Monday, September 11, through Thursday, September 14, in the Claysburg-Kimmel elementary gymnasium.

Once again the Claysburg Farm Show will participate in a statewide apple pie contest. The overall apple pie winner will be eligible to compete in the state farm show in Harrisburg in January. Pies will be judged for crust, filling, overall appearance and sensory qualities, as well as creativity. The outstanding pie will receive a blue ribbon and money on the local level.

A bake sale will be held on Tuesday, September 12, immediately following the judging. The Farm Show Queen Contest was held on Wednesday, September 6, at 7:30 P.M. in the Claysburg-Kimmel High School gymnasium. The contestants were judged in evening gowns, casual attire, poise, and appearance.

A Coloring Contest will be held for children in the CK school district for grades kindergarten through third grade.

A tractor driving contest will be held on Tuesday, September 12, at 3:00 P.M. Immediately following the Tractor Driving Contest will be the horseshoe pitching contest.

A wheelbarrow driving contest will be held on Thursday, September 14, at 6:00 P.M. For this contest one person gets into the wheelbarrow while another person pushes the wheelbarrow while being blindfolded through an obstacle course. Trophies will be awarded to the winners of these special contests

Maple Conference

WAYMART (Wayne Co.)— The annual Pennsylvania Maple Conference and Tour will be held September 28, 29 and 30, in Wayne County at the Ladore Conference Center, Waymart.

The event begins at 8:00 p.m., Thursday evening, with a board of directors meeting. A tour of three maple syrup producers in northern Wayne and Susquehanna Counties and the Aldenville Wood Products plant will be featured on Friday the 29th, with lunch scheduled at the Starrucca House Restaurant, Susquehanna.

At the banquet scheduled for 7:00 p.m. Friday evening, at the Ladore Conference Center, the 1989 state maple sweetheart will be crowned. Representing the Northeast Association in the sweetheart ceremony will be Mary Jamieson, Honesdale, who was recently selected Northeast Pennsylvania Maple Sweetheart. The alternate sweetheart is April Mead, Moscow.

Saturday morning will feature a tour to southern Wayne County and to three maple producers. A pancake and maple syrup lunch will be served at the Newfoundland Fire Hall.

Pack Nutrition In A Bag

Your child's diet: High in cholesterol? Could be. Recent research shows that on the average, American children have higher cholesterol levels than children from other countries. That's why it makes sense for you to take a new look at the kind of lunches you pack for your child to take to school.

According to a recent survey, many packed lunches are not as nutritiously "powerful" as they should be. This is especially true where children's lunches are concerned. A national USDA survey revealed that children who buy a hot lunch at school generally have a more nutritious lunch than those who bring a packed lunch.

Today's busy schedules and children's taste preferences are barriers to healthier meals.

Try these ideas for healthier packed lunches.

•Try different kinds of wholegrain bread such as whole wheat, multigrain, rye and pumpernickel.

•Try snack-sized pumpernickel or small pita pockets.

•Use water-packed tuna instead of oil-packed tuna for less fat.

•Have lean roast meats, poultry and fish for less sodium than cured or processed luncheon meats.

•Remember that natural cheeses, such as Swiss or cheddar, generally have less sodium than American, cheese foods and cheese spreads.

•Use lowfat yogurt and fruit.

•Raw Vegetable salad with strips of lean cooked meat or poultry.

•Lowfat cottage cheese and raw vegetable pieces.

•Fresh fruits and small wedges of lowfat cheese.

•Vegetables marinated in low-calorie Italian or herb salad dressing with a few cubes of lowfat cheese on the side.

•Cold pasta salad with pieces of raw or cooked vegetables.

SALAMI AND PUMPERNICKEL SNACKS

12 slices hard salami
4 slices thin pumpernickel bread
1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese with pimiento, softened
1 medium cucumber, scored, cut into 24 slices
1 small red bell pepper, cut into strips

Spread an equal amount of cream cheese on each slice of bread. Fold salami slices in half; arrange 3 folded slices and 6 cucumber slices on each slice of bread. Garnish with red pepper strips. Cut each sandwich in half. Yield: 8 small sandwiches.

HAM & CREAM CHEESE ON A BAGEL

4 ounces thinly sliced cooked ham
1 3-ounce package cream cheese, softened
⅓ cup shredded sharp Cheddar cheese
2 tablespoons chopped walnuts
1 tablespoon orange marmalade
2 bagels, split and toasted
4 thin celery sticks
4 thin carrot sticks
8 thin apple wedges

Combine cream cheese, Cheddar cheese, walnuts and marmalade in small bowl. Spread cut sides of each bagel with an equal amount of cream cheese mixture. Roll each slice of ham around 1 carrot and 1 celery stick; place on top of cheese mixture. Arrange two apple wedges around each slice of ham. Yield: 4 open faced sandwiches.

"NEW" CHOCOLATE CHIP COOKIE

¼ cup light corn syrup
¼ cup brown sugar
1 tablespoon vegetable shortening
2 egg whites, whipped to stiff peaks
2 tablespoons water
½ teaspoon vanilla
⅔ cup all purpose flour
½ cup instant nonfat dry milk powder
½ teaspoon baking soda
½ teaspoon salt (optional)
1½ cups quick oats, uncooked
2 tablespoons all-bran cereal
½ cup semisweet chocolate chips

In 1½ quart bowl, cream syrup, sugar and shortening. Add beaten egg whites, water and vanilla. Mix on medium speed for 1 minute or until smooth. Stir together flour,k dry milk, baking soda and salt. Add to batter and mix for 2 minutes at low speed, or until thick and fluffy. Stir in oats, bran and chocolate chips until evenly blended.

Place heaping teaspoons fuls of dough 2 inches apart on a cookie sheet, greased or sprayed with a nonstick pan spray. If desired, flatten cookie dough slightly with fingers before baking. Bake at 375 degrees for 8 to 10 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool slightly before removing from pan. Yields 48 cookies, 33 calories each.

When compared with other chocolate chip cookie recipes, these rate:

25 percent fewer calories.
20 percent more dietary fiber
25 percent less sugar
70 percent less fat.

For a new twist to the traditional sandwich, try ham and cheese on a bagel or corned beef with potato salad.

When cool, add noodles, apricots, raisins and bananas; stir well. Chill. Spoon into thermos for school lunch.

Cheryl Miller, Clinton County Extension agent, and Maryann Zepp of Hatfield Quality Meats spent time at Ag Progress Days last month educating consumers on ways to prepare lamb, pork, veal, and beef. One quick and easy cooking method that they demonstrated was stir frying. Listed below are two of the healthy meals they cooked up.

Chinese Pepper Steak

1 pound top round steak, cut ¼ - to 1-inch thick
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ginger
¼ cup soy sauce
3 medium green peppers
3 small tomatoes
2 tablespoons cooking oil
1 clove garlic, minced
¼ cup water

Partially freeze steak to firm and slice diagonally across the grain into very thin strips. Combine cornstarch, sugar, and ginger and stir in soy sauce. Pour mixture over meat and stir. Cut green peppers into thin strips and cut tomatoes into wedges. Quickly brown beef strips, one third at a time, in hot oil and remove from pan. Reduce heat; add green pepper, garlic and water to pan and cook until papper is tender-crisp, 5 to 6 minutes. Stir in meat and tomatoes and heat through. Serves 4.

Stir-Fried Pork

1 pound pork loin or tenderloin
¼ cup each dry sherry and water (sherry may be substituted with soda or gingerale)
3 tablespoons soy sauce
3 tablespoons oil, divided
8 ounces frozen Oriental vegetable mix
4 teaspoons cornstarch

Cut tenderloin into ¼ -inch-thick slices. Combine sherry, water, and soy sauce in medium bowl; add tenderloin, stirring to coat. Heat 2 tablespoons oil in wok or large frying pan. Add frozen vegetables and cook quickly 3 to 4 minutes, stirring constantly. Remove vegetables and reserve. Drain marinade from pork; reserve. Add remaining oil to pan. Quickly brown pork 3 to 4 minutes or until done, stirring constantly. Stir cornstarch into reserved marinade. Add vegetables and marinade and cook, stirring occasionally, until thickened. Serve pork stir fry over rice or noodles. Serves 4.

The Green Bean That Almost Killed Judy Day

By Pat Kendall, R.D., Ph.D.
Colorado State University
Cooperative Extension

COLORADO SPRINGS, CO — Judy Day is happy to be alive. Last November she was stricken with botulism poisoning after eating a portion of one home canned green bean.

The Colorado Springs nurse and mother of three has canned foods - mostly tomatoes and green beans - from her small backyard garden for years. Last summer she canned 36 pints of green beans, 4 pints at a time in a small pressure cooker/canner.

One of those pints she decided to include in a special pre-Thanksgiving Sunday dinner for her family. Before heating the beans she tasted one (she usually did not, and should not have this time either). The bean looked fine, but tasted flat. Something told her she didn't want to serve these beans to her family so she dumped them down the disposal and selected another vegetable to serve at the meal. She felt fine the rest of the day. By the next morning, however, she was having trouble focusing. As the day progressed her vision became worse and she began having trouble speaking and swallowing. She spent the next day (Tuesday) in a medical clinic undergoing tests without results. Back home that evening she choked on chicken soup and was taken by ambulance to the emergency room of the hospital where she worked.

There she was put on a respirator and IV fluids. By now she was almost entirely paralyzed, only able to answer questions with the squeeze of the hand.

It was by one of those squeezes that she answered "yes" when her neurologist asked her if she had recently eaten any home canned vegetables. That was the clue a Denver-based investigator for the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta needed. Within six hours the source of the poisoning was identified and the necessary anti-toxin flown in.

Mrs. Day's condition stabilized within the next 48 hours, but it would be nearly three months before she would be out of intensive care and able to go home. Her lungs had collapsed and her nerve endings were so damaged that she had to relearn how to swallow, speak, move and walk. Once home, it would be months before she was "back to normal."

Where did Mrs. Day go wrong? In a recent interview, she explained the process she used to can her beans. She had pressure-canned the beans (which was correct) but for only 15 minutes as recommended in her 1959 canning booklet, not the 20 minutes now recommended by the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA). Also, she is not sure if she adjusted her process for altitude. Her small pressure canner comes with a 5, 10 and 15 pound weight. Most canning booklets are written for sea level and call for the 10 pound weight. Because water boils at a lower temperature at higher elevations, the 15 pound weight is recommended at elevations above 2,000 feet. (All of Colorado is above 3,000 feet.)

Even if she had used the correct weight and time, three other practices could have resulted in underprocessing. One was the size of her pressure canner. Small pressure canners, or pressure saucepans as they often are called, heat up and cool down too quickly to insure adequate processing in the 20 minutes the canner is held at 10 or 15 pounds pressure. As a result, USDA now recommends against using pressure saucepans to can vegetables and meats. If they are used, an additional 20 minutes processing time is recommended.

With time at a premium, the Colorado Springs woman did not let steam vent from her pressure canner for 10 minutes before she added the weight and started counting processing time. Also, she speeded up the cool down process by placing the canner under running water directly after processing. Both are potentially dangerous time savers. Steam pressure canners do need to be vented for 10 minutes before the weight is added to insure that only steam, not a mixture of steam and air, is inside the canner. Once the processing time is up, the heat should be turned off and the canner allowed to cool down and lose pressure slowly and naturally. This slow cool down process is part of the total process and necessary to insure adequate destruction of potentially dangerous botulinum spores. While any one of these practices may not have spelled disaster, the combination resulted in a jar with enough toxin to wipe out the city of Colorado Springs.

Even so, the toxin would have been destroyed if Mrs. Day had boiled the beans for 15 minutes before tasting. It was that taste before boiling that nearly took her life.

Judy Day considers herself lucky. She was the only one to have tasted the beans, none of her family did. Her medical background helped her understand the seriousness of her condition and her will to live has helped her recovery. She did plant a garden this spring, but plans on freezing any extra vegetables it produces.

For information on safe canning procedures, contact your local county Extension Office.

Question Corner

ANSWER — Charlotte Smoyer, Johnstown, requested a recipe for canning snap beans without using a pressure cooker. Canning vegetables without using a pressure cooker is no longer considered safe. Please look in this section for the article "The Green Bean That Almost Killed Judy Day." The possible dangers that result from improper canning is too risky and for this reason we will not print a recipe of this type.

Students Greet Back-To-School Time With Happiness And Sadness

BY LOU ANN GOOD

Hundreds of lumbering, yellow busses were greeted by cheers and by moans this week as children across America began a new school year.

On Wednesday, fourth graders at Ephrata Mennonite School expressed happiness and saddness at the onset of school..

Joel Martin, 10, lamented, "I wish I could stay home and go swimming."

His buddy, John Burkholder, 9, disagreed by saying, "I was bored at home. I'm glad school started because I like to study."

A group of giggling girls had a hard time deciding whether or not they were happy or sad about the beginning of school. They agreed they were glad to see their friends and that recess was the best part of the day.

On the first morning of school, the fourth graders studied Math. They boasted, "It was easy stuff."

But they're certain Math won't remain easy. Stacy Kurtz, 9, said, "It's going to be hard."

One of her classmate countered, "But not too hard, because my sister told me it will be hard but not to hard."

The days ahead will show whether or not the studies are harder this year. But one thing is certain, their brand new sneakers are bound to to get dirty and scuffed. But, who cares? It's recess time at school—the best time of all for these fourth graders and for their peers in schools across the U.S.A.

Have a great year in school!

"Recess is the best time of all!"

Children across America returned to school this week.

These guys are great buddies even if they do disagree on whether or not they were happy to return to school. From left: Noah Burkholder, 9; Joel Martin, 10; Herbie Martin, 9; Derrick Ramsey, 9; and John Brubaker, 9.

Adams County Selects Poultry Queen

YORK SPRINGS (Adams Co.) — Crowned Adams County Poultry Queen, Kristi Mummert will assist the county poultry association with promotional activities for the year.

The 17-year-old helps her parents Wayne and Shirley Mummert on their East Berlin farm with its turkey, hog and steer operations.

A senior at Bermudian Springs High School, Kristi is active in band and field hockey. She is a 4-H member and this year represented Adams County in the poultry judging area at State Days.

The pageant was held at York Springs Firehall at 6:30 p.m. on August 18. Gettysburg Chapter of Sweet Adelines provided entertainment.

The county poultry association awarded $3,400 in college scholarships during 1989. It is a strong sponsor of 4-H programs and active in educational and promotional programs for the poultry industry.

September Lawn Care

NEWARK, DE. — The best time of year to establish a new lawn or repair an old one is September and October, according to David Tatnall, University of Delaware Extension horticultural agent. "The typically cool nights and warm days of this season," he explains, "are ideal for the growth and development of our finest turf grasses. You should be able to sow lawn seed from early September until about October 15."

Two other important chores essential to a thorough fall lawn renovation are aerating and fertilizing.

Hard compacted soil impedes water and fertilizer penetration and discourages deep root growth. Power aerators, which can be rented locally, help "open up" or aerate the soil. "Make sure you use a machine that actually removes tiny plugs of soil," Tatnall says, "not a spiker which can cause even greater soil compaction."

Aerating also helps to reduce thatch. Thatch is a dark, peat-like layer of dead grass that forms at the soil surface. It slows penetration of water, fertilizer and pesticides into the soil, which discourages deep root growth, Tatnall says. Thatch may also harbor insects and disease. Thatch is more serious when the soil is compacted and acid, or when the lawn is over-watered and over-fertilized. Excessive thatch of a half-inch or more can be reduced by using a core aerator to remove plugs of soil and speed decomposition.

Fall is the best time to fertilize lawns. During this season, grass naturally puts extra energy into root growth and tiller production that combine to produce a healthy stand. Apply one or two (but no more than two) pounds of nitrogen per 1,000 square feet of lawn (ten to twenty pounds of 10-10-10 fertilizer). It is best to use a fertilizer that contains both quick and slow release nitrogen.

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is a repeat of a readers' favorite. Joyce Battcher is on vacation.

To liven up a Sunday afternoon, make a batch of taffy in your microwave. Then gather family or friends for a good old-fashioned taffy pull. Or microwave a batch of hard candy and let everyone shape it into ribbons, buttons and lollipops.

Go ahead and have fun with today's recipes. I've included specific directions in each for the candy "pullers or shapers." For the cooks: Follow recipes exactly and keep in mind the following candy-making hints.

Make taffy or hard candy on a cool, dry day. If you try it on a hot, humid day, candy will be sticky.

Use a large microwave-safe and head-resistant glass container. Anchor Hocking's two-quart glass Batter Bowl (really about 2½-quart) is ideal for either recipe.

Use a microwave candy thermometer for easy cooking and best results. Remember, you can't leave a regular candy thermometer in during microwaving, and a temperature probe doesn't register high enough. You can use the old cold water test, but it's messy, time consuming and not as accurate.

Cover dish with plastic wrap and microwave on High until candy is boiling. Then stir well to dissolve sugar. Continue microwaving, uncovered, until candy reaches the proper doneness. Microwave time in each recipe is just a guide. If your microwave wattage output is lower than 650 watts, you may need to add as much as one-third more cooking time to these recipes. Check for final doneness by reading the microwave candy thermometer at eye level.

After boiling has stopped, stir in coloring and flavoring. Use oil-based flavoring (not water-based extract) for best flavor and to prevent stickiness. Oil-based flavoring is found in drug stores or candy-making shops.

If you want a variety of flavors, it's best to make several batches the size of today's recipes and flavor each differently rather than try to divide a larger batch.

If either candy gets too hard to work with, soften it by placing the pan in your conventional oven at 350° F for a few minutes.

Salt Water Taffy

1 cup granulated sugar
2 tablespoons cornstarch
¾ cup light corn syrup
½ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt (optional)
1 tablespoon margarine or butter
½ -1 teaspoon oil-based flavoring
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Stir together granulated sugar and cornstarch in microwave-safe 2-quart measure or deep bowl. Stir in corn syrup, water and salt. If using powdered food coloring, add now. Microwave (High), covered, 3¾ to 4 minutes or until boiling. Stir well. Microwave (High), uncovered, 8 to 10 minutes until candy thermometer register 265° F (hard ball stage). When bubbling has stopped, stir in margarine and flavoring. If using liquid food coloring, add now. Pour onto lightly buttered jelly roll pan. When cool enough to handle, pull and shape. Lightly dust finished pieces with powdered sugar. Wrap pieces in waxed paper and store in a tightly covered metal or glass container at room temperature. Or, store unwrapped pieces in tightly covered glass container in refrigerator or freezer. Makes about 1 pound.

To pull and shape: Let candy cool about 10 to 15 minutes. To test, press with your finger. When a dent remains, candy is ready for pulling. Divide it into several pieces (depending on number of "pullers" available). Pull with lightly buttered fingertips and thumbs until candy is satiny and light-colored. Keep pulling candy into a long rope, folding half of candy back onto other half until candy is hard to pull. Form into a rope and cut with a lightly oiled scissors into 1-inch pieces, letting pieces fall into a dish of the powdered sugar. Continue as above.

Festive Hard Candy*

½ cup hot water
¾ cup light corn syrup
2 cups granulated sugar
About ¼ teaspoon powdered food coloring or 2-3 drops liquid food coloring
¼-½ teaspoon oil-based flavoring
2 tablespoons powdered sugar

Combine water, syrup and granulated sugar in microwave-safe 2-quart measure or deep bowl. If using powdered food coloring, add now. Microwave (High), covered, 6½ to 7 minutes or until boiling. Stir well. Microwave (High), uncovered, 10 to 14 minutes until candy thermometer registers 300° F (hard crack stage). Mixture will turn light golden brown. When bubbling has stopped, stir in flavoring. If using liquid food coloring, add it now. Pour into lightly oiled 9x13-inch pan. When cool enough to handle, mold into shapes. Or when completely cool, break into pieces. Mix with powdered sugar to keep pieces from sticking together. Store in a tightly covered metal or glass container at room temperature. Makes about 1½ pounds.

Anise candy (as requested by a Dubuque, Iowa, reader): Use red food coloring and anise oil-based flavor.

To shape candy: Let candy set about 10 minutes. Check coolness with a metal spoon or lightly oiled fingers — lift edges gently and pull gently. When candy is warm to the touch but still pliable, mold pieces into squares with your forefinger and thumb, roll pieces into round balls, flatten round balls into buttons, and pull and shape pieces like ribbon candy, or pull a large piece into a rope and cut with a lightly oiled scissors. Continue as above.

Lollipops: Pour hot mixture into lollipop molds. Or shape partially cooled mixture around lollipop sticks.

Why let a developer get the lion's share of the profits from the sale of your land.

The appraised value of your farm or other acreage, is not the true value of your land. Whereas a developer may offer you the appraised amount, he may in fact receive more than twice that amount per acre after the land is subdivided.

Baseball Fans Participate In Dairy Promotion Fun

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.)— Some 1,500 students will be reminded of milk's important role in their personal fitness each day when they attend school as the result of a special dairy promotion held recently in conjunction with a Harrisburg Senators minor league baseball game. These students were given a three-ring binder when they came to the game, compliments of the Middle Atlantic Milk marketing Association and WHP-TV and radio station. Imprinted on the notebook are the three milk cartons, a whole, lowfat and skim carton and the slogan, "It's Fitness You Can Drink."

School children were not only ones that benefited from the promotion. Everyone attending the game that day had a chance to watch as local dairy princesses and county promotion coordinators built a 50-foot banana split along side of the grandstand. The list of ingredients for the giant split included 30 gallons of Hershey's Tin Lizzy Classic Ice Cream, provided by Hershey Ice Cream, 11¼ pounds of whipped cream provided by Chocolate Syrup and 40 pounds of bananas. Once all the ingredients were assembled it took the crowd about 15 minutes to make it disappear.

Ice cream lovers watched as local dairy committee members and dairy princesses built a 50-foot banana split as part of the promotion. Once the split was assembled, it took the crowd only about 15 minutes to consume it.

Little Miss Dairy Princess, Heidi Miller, gives another young baseball fan a serving from the 50-foot banana split she helped to make as part of the promotion.

A celebrity cow milking contest, sponsored by MAMMA and the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, took place on the field, just prior to the start of the baseball game. Two teams competed in the contest with cows provided vy the Paul Miller family. Team A members, Pa. State Representative Pete Wambach, and Senator players, Jeff Osborne and Rob Russell, were defeated by Team B members Doug Sivco, WHP-TV, Trish Mahoney, WHP-TV, and Larry Fox, WHP-AM. Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess Kim Bonzo was the official judge and later threw out the first ball to start the game.

Alternate State Dairy Princess Laurie Sterner, who will attend Messiah College this fall on a music scholarship, sang the national anthem.

The Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association is a dairy farmer funded and directed organization, promoting milk and dairy products through research, education, advertising and publicity.

Tranquil Scene Belies Whirlwind Of Activity

BY LOU ANN GOOD

REFTON (Lancaster Co.) — Blue Spruce trees line the winding drive that meanders off Beaver Valley Pike to the handsome brick farmhouse of Ken and Esther Meck. Brilliant displays of flowers and huge trees of many varieties accent the neatly manicured lawn. Four Harvestores rise above the neatly painted yellow barns, chicken houses and surrounding cornfields.

This tranquil setting belies the whirlwind of activity stirred up by the Meck's 17-year-old daughter who lives there.

She's Anita Meck, the PA Poultry Queen and a freshman at Millersville University. Her involvement in the poultry industry, FFA, 4-H, studies and community affairs brings schedule conflicts, but Anita does not flinch.

She said, "When I decide to do something, I do my best. My goals might be hard to attain, but I still try."

The petite red head is familiar with hard work and busy schedules. In high school she took not one but three majors—college prep, ag and business.

She said, I wanted to go to college so I needed college prep. Since I lived on the farm, I knew I wanted ag. Plus I wanted a business background because it's needed in daily life."

To accomplish her demanding schedule, Anita had independent study in business math and accounting.

Explained Anita, "Independent study is when you don't sit in classes, but you take tests and consult with teachers if you need help in studying on your own. To do that, you need ambition and you need to discipline yourself."

It worked out well for Anita who said, "The busier I am, the easier grades come. If I'm not busy, I tend to avoid the situation. Being busy makes me more disciplined."

She made the honor roll all year. She was awarded the Burrows scholar for being the outstanding junior in science. That award has confirmed that she has made the right choice to major in chemistry. She hopes to become a labortory technition and "to have a little farm because it would be hard not to live on a one."

Anita said, "I tailed my dad around the farm ever since I could walk."

The Mecks raise pullets and steers. Anita's chores include washing light bulbs and water cups and feeding peeps. She also set up an IBM computer program for the farm. And she helps her dad with mailing letters and selling chicken barbecue tickets for the Lampeter Fair.

As poultry queen, she promotes the industry at schools, banquets and parades. She said, "I think the poultry industry has an effective program because they reach all age groups. I'd like to stress the variety and selection that poultry offers and promote pride in the industry. There's no substitute for eggs."

She has one older sister, Crystal Evans, who Anita credits with teaching her a lot and with helping her with her pageant presentation.

As 4-H secretary, Anita encourages fellow members, "Don't concentrate on winning, but work for the experience. Anita said, "As secretary and committee chairman, it's discouraging trying to get people to work."

For 10 years, Anita worked hard in her 4-H projects. As part of the Red Rose Beef Club, she showed a steer annually at her hometown Lampeter Fair. Last year she was rewarded with a grand champion ribbon.

Anita remarked, "It was an outstanding year. Even if I hadn't won, I'd do it again for the experience. It's a way to getting to know others. It builts self-confidence."

This is Anita's tenth year in 4-H. She said, "In my beginning years as a 4-H member, I had the time, but not the experience. Now I know what to do, but I don't have the time."

Anita sees herself as a person who takes on responsibility and as "fairly outgoing—but not majorally outgoing." She likes responsibility and organization.

She earned the star chapter farmer award at the Lampeter High School Garden Spot Chapter. She was the FFA representative to the Lampeter Fair queen contest where she placed as second runnerup.

That event posed a scheduling conflict, but Anita, being resourceful pulled through. While she was competing for Fair Queen, the steer competition was in process. A friend showed Anita's steer and while Anita answered the judges questions, she kept one eye on the nearby steer competition and learned the steer won grand champion almost simultaneously with her placing.

This year she needs to appear as the state poultry queen at a fair and at the banquet at the same time that she is scheduled to show in 4-H steer competition. "I'll manage somehow," Anita promises. "It may be hard, but I'm going to do the best I can."

She may be a whirlwind of aetivity, but everything remains under control when Anita is in charge.

PA Poultry Queen Anita Meck has more than her arms full. Her schedule is packed with poultry promotional activities, 4-H, FFA and classes as a chemistry major at Millersville University.

It's Time To Review Food Shopping Rules

September is generally a tough month to stay within the budget, unless you have done some advanced planning. If you put vacation expenses on your credit card those bills will be coming due. Then there's back to school clothes and supplies to pay for along with all the regulars.

Food shopping does offer the opportunity to stretch dollars. Even though we do "have to eat" we have a wide range of food from which to choose. If you have already taken most of the known steps to cut down on food expenses there is nothing much to offer but sympathy. If not, your very laxity provides hope of a sort. There are lots of things you can do to save money.

First of all, before you go anywhere near a supermarket, check your cupboards, refrigerator and freezer to discover what you have on hand to help plan your meals. Then read and study your favorite store's weekly food ads. Begin to plan menus around store features and what you have on hand.

Be flexible in your menu planning since most stores have in-store features that can be to your advantage. Clip and use coupons. Try to plan a week's worth of meals at a time. It's not easy and takes time, but nobody ever said saving money was easy. Now you are ready to make your shopping list.

Knowing the layout of your favorite store can also help you save money. If you know the exact location of items in the store, you can orgnaize your shopping list to shop the aisles once and systematically with no backtracking or lost time.

Knowing some of the psychology of food placement can foil some of the attempts of retailers to get you to loosen your purse strings. Think for a minute where the white bread is located. It's usually at the end of an aisle to pull you along. You've got to go past a lot of items to get to the bread and when you do it's usually on the bottom shelf. Items at eye level are reserved for those things you do not have on your list like specialty bread items or fancy pastries. Every department has high demand items to pull you along, items that are not on most shopping lists, and a lot of high impluse, high profit items that are easy to see and reach. It takes a lot of self discipline to stick to a shopping list.

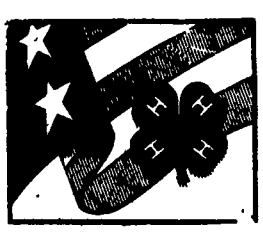
But what is one to do in these new super stores with up to 60,000 square feet of selling area and more than 20,000 items for sale? They have beautiful interiors with attractive lighting, music and smells. They have self-serve bakeries, delis and cheese shops, fresh seafood and floral sections, and pharmacies.

One way to not get carried away is to keep a running tally of your purchases. Those little, thin pocket calculaotrs are easy to carry and use. You will be less tempted to throw away money on frills if you know how much you have already spent.

Shop for meat in terms of meals. When certain cuts that your family enjoys are on sale, buy an extra large cut with the thought of using it for more than one meal. Think in terms of planned-overs, not wasty leftovers.

Learn a little home butchering. Buy whole chickens on sale and cut up your own. Buy a larger cut of meat than usual when on sale and cut it into several meals.

These are just a few ideas to help you save. You can probably think of a lot more.



Money And Teens: Parents Can Help

EPHRATA, (Lancastder Co.) — While the number of teens in the United States is decreasing today (30 million in 1975 to 24.3 million in 1986), the amount of money they are spending is increasing dramatically.

A recent Teen-Age Research Unlimited Media/Market Study estimates that teens will spend about $78 billion on products and services for themselves and their families this year. That's 7.5 billion more than in 1986.

Teens are spending more and doing it on their own, and because teens will soon be on their own and managing their finances by themselves, it is vital they learn sound money management practices.

Parents need to help teens see budgeting as a simple way to control spending. Adults should help them learn to evaluate the cost of something in relation to its value and future use. Be sure they develop a sound, working knowledge of credit, how it works and what to do when it doesn't.

Research studies have linked a lower-than-average knowledge of money management and bankruptcy. The widespread misuse of credit also has contributed to increasing numbers of bankruptcies.

Be sure that teens are aware that the common causes of bankruptcy — medical expenses, divorce, and family problems — can happen to anyone. Stress the importance to your teen of an emergency fund and having health insurance. Most health insurers will not cover dependents over the age of 19 unless they are full-time students. Once your teen turns 19 or completes college he or she will need to get their own health insurance.

Start early with your children to teach them financial management skills. Include older children and teens in family financial discussions. Give them the responsibility for their own expenses. One way to do this is with an allowance.

An allowance does not mean that the family is spending more money. It does mean that parents are shifting some of the responsibility for spending decisions to their children. You as a parent may not always agree with the spending choices, but allowing your children to make small mistakes now will help avoid more costly mistakes as they get older. Learning sound financial management is a skill like any other. Children need to be shown how to manage money and then allowed to practice to develop their skills.

Be sure teens understand where the family's money comes from and how far it has to go. Let them help you work through the family's budget. This is good experience for developing their own budget. The Wayne County Extension Office has a good beginning budget guide called the "Fudge-It Budget Book." Call or stop in for this handy guide to developing a budget (717/253-5970 X239).

It is also important to help teens learn comparative shopping, reading labels and interpreting advertising. If possible, let them experience managing both their own checking and savings accoutn. Be sure they know how to write checks and balance their checkbook each month.

Above all, be open and supportive and resist the temptation to make their financial decisions for them. Adulthood and the real world is just around the corner — help them learn to manage money in the adult world by allowing them to manage their money now in their world.

The New Windsor Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church in New Windsor, Maryland, is 150 years old this year.

Commemorates 150 years

BY SHARON B. SCHUSTER
Maryland Correspondent

NEW WINDSOR, MD — Standing as a sentinel in the center of New Windsor, the New Windsor Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church has witnessed the jubilations of this small rural community, as well as its hardships. More than five thousand Union soldiers paraded by her ivy covered walls on the evening of June 30, 1863. Two of those men lie at rest in the adjacent cemetery, "victims of exhaustion," according to excerpts from the journal of young Maggie Mehring, reprinted in Just South of Gettysburg, edited by Frederick Shriver Klein.

Where soldiers once camped out on her cool green lawn under the bright summer moon, the turn of the century brought happier times. The annual lawn fete drew crowds of people from some distance to sample the delicacies prepared by the ladies of the church and to listen to the music of the band. And the event raised as much as $200 each August.

Now, 150 years since her founding, the sesquicentennial committee of the church is planning a celebration worthy of this important and influential institution. In keeping with tradition, the committee, lead by Dan McLoud and Reverend William Forsyth, has decided to parallel the celebration staged for the church's centennial in 1939. Others forming the group are Jeff Newton, Helen Williams and Sharon Schuster.

"We're planning to have a two day celebration, rather than the week long affair held fifty years ago," reported the committee. On Saturday, October 14, the congregation will assemble on the church lawn for a tree planting. Originally, the grounds were lined with stately cedars planted in 1845. The last of the cedar trees was taken down about ten years ago, when the steps were replaced by a gradually sloping walk to the front entrance. In 1974, Granville Bixler donated weeping cherry and mountain ash trees to replace the cedars. The ashes have since been removed by the town when a community sidewalk was installed, but the weeping cherry trees are a heavenly sight to behold in early spring. Laden with blossoms, they have been likened to pink clouds suspended in the bright blue heavens above.

After the ceremonial planting, parishioners and guests will partake of a catered meal 'on the house.' "I think the ladies of the church should be able to enjoy the meal, too," chimed in Isabel Forsyth, the pastor's wife. So, this time the ladies will be out of the kitchen and enjoying the meal without the clean-up afterwards.

Reverend Forsyth suggested that in lieu of a sermon in the evening, the congregation will hear selected items of history of their 150-year-old church, presented by various committee members. They met one evening to pour over the old handwritten journals and minutes kept in the corner cupboard. It took hours of searching, line by line through

National Beef Cook-Off Comes To the Coleman's Ranch

MOLALLA, OR. — The Coleman ranch in Molalla, Ore., has been a little crazier this summer than most summers. In a normal year, Steve and Cathy Coleman spend July, August and September running at full-speed to keep their 1,000 acre, 400-cow herd ranch and their 800-acre farming operation on track. In their "free time," they help three daughters and a son practice the rodeoing events that keep some of the family on the road nearly every weekend from March to August.

This year-- as if they needed something extra-- the Colemans volunteered to host a ranch tour, barbecue and rodeo for about 800 people.

"I don't usually invite 800 people to dinner," Cathy Coleman says with a nervous laugh. "But this was something special."

The guest list for this "special" event includes contestants (and their families), members of the media and volunteer workers who will be attending the 1989 National Beef Cook-Off September 17 to 19 in nearby Portlant.

Each year, the National Beef Cook-Off-- which is co-sponsored by the American National Cattle Women and the Beef Industry Council-- offers amateur chefs from all over the country a chance to win big money for their beef recipes. The contest gives the beef industry a chance to tell the general public that beef is a contemporary food that can be prepared in a great many ways. This year, the prize for the top recipe is $15,000.

But no matter how good the prize money or how good the food, you can't sit around tasting recipes for three days. So the Oregon Cattle Women, who are hosts of this year's event, decided a tour of a working ranch would be just the ticket to entertain and educate the 70 food editors and the 64 contestants at the Cook-Off. They asked Steve and Cathy to host the tour and barbecue.

"We're about the nearest working ranch to Portland," Steve says. "And, since some of the people who are coming to the Cook-Off have never been on a ranch before, they wanted to show what a real ranch is all about. A tour sounded like the best way to get the good word out about the beef industry, so we agreed to have a barbecue and show them our ranch."

What the Cook-Off visitors will see at the Coleman's is a beautiful ranch nestled in the Williamette Valley, just at the foothills of Mt. Hood. The Colemans run 400 crossbred cows on their pastures, and turn them in with Simmental or Limousin bulls. "We try to wean the calves at 530 pounds for steers and 490 pounds for heifers," Steve says.

Last year for the first time, he took his cattle to a feedlot in eastern Oregon for finishing. "Come fall, it rains here a lot, and it gets real muddy. The cattle don't do well, and it's hard to work with them," Steve says. "So we shipped them east where it's drier. The calves we sold through the feedlot last year weighed about 100 pounds more than they would have if we had sold them right off the ranch."

The Colemans each year also buy about 400 yearlings between the first of February and mid-April. When they first arrive, the 500 pound yearlings get chopped alfalfa, barley and corn silage. In the early spring, when the pastures come on, the Colemans let the cattle graze. "Our pastures stay green until at least the Fourth of July," Steve says. By the first of August, the yearlings weigh about 800 pounds and are ready for market.

Steve and Cathy Coleman work side-by-side to keep their 400 cowherd and 1,000-acre farming operation on track.

Steve and Cathy Coleman with Christy, 16; Bridget, 12; Kim, 15; Ross, 10; and Mitch, 4.

The yearling cycle corresponds with the Colemans' rodeo cycle. Daughters Christy, 16, and Kim, 15, begin their high school rodeo practice and events in March and end around August 1. Christy goes in for barrel racing, pole bending, breakaway calf roping and cutting horse events. Kim does all of that and adds goat-tying. Twelve-year-old Bridgett does everything her sisters do, plus team roping. Son Ross, 10, begins Pee Wee practice on bucking ponies, bucking calves and calf roping.

"There aren't many weekends we're home," Cathy says. She drives the kids to events all over the state while," Steve takes care of things at home."

"Things" include 425-acres of hops, a 150-acre grove of hazel trees for hazelnuts and 200 acres of tall fescue for grass seed. The hops and grass seed alone could keep Steve busy most of the summer. He harvests the grass seed and bales the fescue straw in mid-summer, sending some of the straw to ships bound for Japan.

Later, he and 40 hired helpers harvest the hops for four hard weeks beginning in mid-August ("He better be done with the hops when this Cook-Off barbecue comes around," Cathy says. "Otherwise, I'll just have to make sure he takes a day off.")

With all this, "I still try to go to the kids' rodeos whenever I can," Steve says. "And I try to give some assistance. But you know how it is, the young ones don't always want to listen to ole Dad."

They should. Steve was a rodeoer of some repute in his day. In 1967, when he was 23 years old, Steve took off on the professional rodeo trail. He rode bucking broncs for 14 bruising years, never really devoting all his time to it, but devoting enough of his heart to make it a lifetime love.

"I didn't rodeo very hard," he says. "I was a part-timer and stayed mainly here in the Northwest. But I did get as far east as Chicago and as far south as Houston, and I went north all the way to Calgary.

Bridget, Christy, Kim and Ross Coleman display their rodeo awards.

It was a great challenge. I think that's why I loved it."

He passed along that love-- and some skill-- to his children. His two older girls competed this summer at the National Invitationals in Fallon, Nev., and Kim won "Rookie of the Year" title.

"I hope the kids come into college scholarships through their rodeoing," Steve says. "Of course, they all claim that one day they'll go to the National Finals."

Even if the kids don't go onto bigger and better rodeos, Steve says the experience has been good for them. "It has been a great thing to do together as a family."

With a family background like this, it's not surprising that the Colemans decided that, along with the ranch tour and barbecue, a mini-rodeo would be the best way to entertain the Cook-Off folks. "We're going to have some local rodeoers come in and buck a few horses and bulls," Steve says. The kids will also show off their roping and riding talents."

"Rodeoing is something you do on your own time," Steve says. "But it's part of the cattle-ranching heritage. I think these people from the Cook-Off will be interested because it's all part of the beef industry."

And when the barbecue and rodeo are finished, "We've invited some of our neighbors and friends to stay after the crowd has gone back to Portland," Steve says. That's when the Colemans hope to relax a little for the first time in months.

attendance records, meetings, baptismal records and annual reports to find the most interesting tidbits.

Isaac Richardson Atlee, the founder of New Windsor, sold the site to the first trustees of the newly formed church for $100 in 1841. The congregation had previously met in Greenwood Church, just out of town. James Clemson Atlee, son of Isaac Atlee, advanced the funds to erect the brick building. The total cost was $3,543.

As the church grew, it became closely associated with Blue Ridge College which is now the site of the Brethren Service Center. It was reported that as many as forty ministerial students worshipped at the "ivy-covered church" during their college days.

The church was in its heyday during the centennial celebration in 1939. In his annual report to the presbytery, John Ross Hays, supply pastor to the New Windsor Church, noted a downward trend. "I would approximate the average age of the membership of the church to be 50 years," he reported. "In time the church membership will drop off rapidly, for there seems to be so few young people to make up the church of the future. I believe the church can go on for ten or fifteen years."

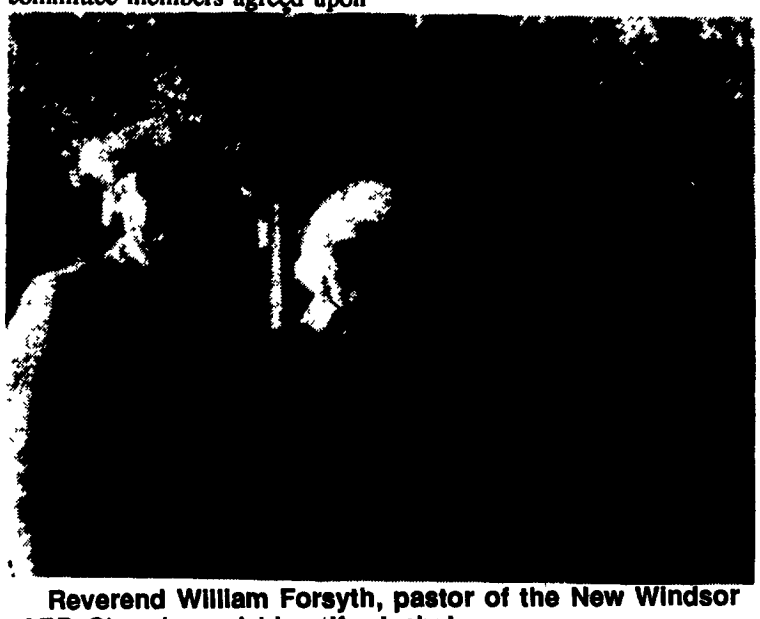
Sadly, the minister's prophetic observations came true. The church indeed did go to sleep for a while until she was resurrected in the 1970's by Reverend C. Biddle Foster who took the ailing church into his tri-parish assignment. With his loving and insightful guidance and inspiring messages, the church began to come alive. Though Reverend Foster was called away to concentrate his efforts on behalf of his church in Manchester, Maryland, the daffodils that were planted in memory of his late wife, Jean, also serve as a remembrance of a beloved pastor. The kind and gentle Rev. John Hoeprich ministered to the spiritual needs of the flock in the interim.

As a friend of the church once said, 'God doesn't close one door that He doesn't open another'. That certainly was true, for into the sanctuary came Reverend Forsyth, with his heavy Scottish accent and contagious love of God. He has seen the church continue to grow and has instilled a new found reverence for this house of the Lord. It is not unusual to hear the humming of hand tools on a Saturday, members working fervently to refinish the beautiful pews. And mid-week potluck suppers and hymn sings add to the fellowship.

To round out the weekend celebration this year, the congregation will assemble at the sanctuary at 9:00 a.m. Ron Williams will summon the crowd with the tolling of the bells, just as he does every Sunday at this regular hour of worship. At 9:30, those in attendance will make a pilgrimage to Greenwood, just as they did fifty years ago, to recall the humble beginnings of the church. The sermon will be delivered from the pulpit of this circa 1737 church that stands as it did then, with no electricity or plumbing.

The celebration will conclude back at the church on the corner of Church and High streets in New Windsor, with a slice of cake for everyone.

As a special remembrance of the centennial anniversary, a book on the history of the first hundred years of the church was published. For the 150th, Helen Williams suggested that a commemorative plate be designed and issued. The committee members agreed upon the elements to be included on the eight-inch, gold-rimmed, ivory plate - a sketch of the church taken from the front of the centennial program; the name, New Windsor Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church; dates, 1839-1989; and a ring of ivy.



Reverend William Forsyth, pastor of the New Windsor ARP Church, and his wife, Isabel.

September Is Honey Month

ANNAPOLIS, MD — September has been declared National Honey Month by the National Honey Board, honoring the contributions of the nation's honey bee.

In Maryland, honey production is a growing business. There are 1,802 registered beekeepers and 13,828 honey bee colonies in the state. In 1987, fewer than 100 new honey-related products were introduced in major supermarkets; last year, nearly 160 new products containing honey made it to the grocery shelves.

The honey bee also contributes to the health of Maryland agriculture. Crops pollinated by honey bees include apples, zucchini, cucumbers, melons, berries and lima beans. Moreover, honey bees pollinate much of Maryland's woodlands and flower gardens.

There are approximately 211,600 beekeepers nationally, who tend more than four million beehives. Each spring, commercial beekeepers transport colonies to major agricultural areas where honeybees pollinate fruit, seed, nut and vegetable crops, providing increased yields and higher quality products. In the process, honey bees are responsible for pollinating approximately 80 percent of all insect-pollinated crops.

September is set aside as the month to honor the honey bee because it marks the beginning of the honey harvest and is the sweetener's most popular time of the year.

New Canning Process Keeps Vegetables Crisp

MIAMI, NY — A new food-preserving process that makes canned vegetables nearly as firm and crunchy as fresh vegetables has been invented by Cornell University chemist Malcolm C. Bourne.

Bourne announced his advance on September 12 at the annual meeting of the American Chemical Society in Miami, where he described experiments that already have produced far crispier canned carrots, beans and cauliflower.

Bourne is a professor of food science and technology at Cornell's New York State Agricultural Experiment Station at Geneva, N.Y. The process involves lower-than-normal cooking temperatures, a brief holding period to allow a naturally occurring food enzyme to "fix" the vegetables' crispness, and the addition of calcium and citric acid. Cornell has applied for a patent on the canning process, which works in the laboratory and could be ussed commercially in a few years, the food scientist said.

"Not much has changed in food canning since the Frenchman Nicholas Appert invented the process in 1810," Bourne said in an interview before the ACS meeting. "Napoleon was preparing for his Russian campaign, and he wanted a better means of preserving food for the troops. Appert won the prize of 12,000 francs for the process, and we've had mushy canned vegetables ever since."

Vegetable canning, as currently practiced by home canners and commercial food processors, involves two cooking steps: a short period of blanching vegetables in boiling water to drive out gases so that more vegetables can be packed in the can or jar, and a longer period of heating in the container to sterilize the vegetables and kill microorganisms that would cause botulism.

"We can cut short the sterilization; nobody likes to die of botulism," Bourne said. "But we suspected that vegetables were losing their firmness during the blanching stage and wondered if using less heat at that point would preserve the crispness."

Bourne began investigating the chemical reasons for the mushiness of cooked vegetables. He realized that the heat of cooking breaks down the large, complex pectin molecules that are responsible for firmness in fresh vegetables. The breakdown process is called depolymerization.

He discovered, however, that one enzyme found naturally in almost all plant tissue, pectin methylesterase, or PME, seemed to have potential for reversing the softening effects of cooking.

PME builds "salt bridges" out of the spare calcium atoms in vegetables, Bourne explained. If conditions favor the enzymatic action, the result is more linkages and a larger pectin polymer and crisper foods. He began to experiment to find the ideal conditions for the action of PME.

The Geneva Station, with its pilot food-processing plant, prepared thousands of cans of beans, carrots, and other vegetables at various blanching temperatures and "holding times" before sterilization. The holding time would give the PME a chance to work before the vegetables were reheated during sterilization. A holding time of 30 minutes was estimated to be the most that commercial canners could afford in the production line.

A blanching temperature of 140 to 150 degrees Fahrenheit was found to be best for the desired enzymatic action. The results, after the vegetables were sterilized and canned, were dramatic:

- Chantenay carrots prepared with the modified technology were nearly twice as firm as those from conventional canning proceses, an increase from 219 newtons -- the force required to crush the pieces of vegetable in a testing machine -- to 437 newtons. That is similar to fresh carrots that are lightly cooked in the kitchen.
- Cauliflower increased in firmness from 65 to 127 newtons, similar to lightly cooked fresh cauliflower.

"That's without adding anything to the vegetables," Bourne said. "Everything is already there in the tissue."

Two additional processes produced even crisper vegetables, Bourne found. It was well known in the vegetable processing industry that lowering the pH by adding an acid such as citric acid permits a more gentle heat treatment during sterilization and results in a firmer-textured product. Also, the addition of small amounts of the essential nutrient calcium gives a firmer texture.

"We found that our modified technology is synergistic with calcium addition and lowered pH. It's a case of two plus two plus two equalling 10," Bourne said. The modified technology, in combination with added calcium and lowered pH, produced these firmness values:

- Danvers carrots increased in crispness from 214 newtons with the conventional technology to 1,581.
- BBL47 green beans increased from 233 to 4,376 newtons.
- Cauliflower increased from 65 to 1,581 newtons.

"That's almost as firm and crisp as fresh, uncooked produce," Bourne said. "We think the time will come when half the items in the salad bar or the stir-fry pan in your favorite restaurant will come from tin cans instead of the refrigerator."

The Cornell food scientist said the increased holding time can be easily included in the commercial-food-processing line by dropping the blanched vegetables on a slow-moving conveyor belt on the way to the can-filling machine and sterilizer. But the lower blanching temperatures confront industry with what he called a second-generation problem that does not appear in his smaller-scale laboratory process: Thermophilic, or heat-loving microorganisms, present in small quantities in vegetables before blanching and which thrive in temperatures around 150 degrees Fahrenheit, may reproduce in the huge blanching tanks used in commercial-food-processing plants.

Thermophilic microorganisms can produce gases and sour tastes in canned goods. Bourne explained that thermophilic microorganisms are not a problem in the laboratory, where blanching tanks operate for an hour or so before being emptied. Commercial blanching tanks are continuously operated for 20 to 24 hours at a time with successive loads of vegetables. Boiling temperatures currently used in commercial blanching tanks destroy the microorganisms but temperatures prescribed for crispier vegetables would not.

"It's a problem for the microbiologists," Bourne said, noting he is "fairly confident" the thermophilic microorganism problem in blanching water can be overcome in two to five years, perhaps by adjusting the pH in the blanching tank or cycling the water through high-temperature sterilizers.

"Consumers are demanding vegetables with a firm, crisp texture," the food scientist said. "For one thing, there's been a revolution in dental health. Mother used to have dentures so she would cook soft food for the whole family. Now Mother has teeth and she can handle harder, crispier foods."

It's probably not coincidental that sales of canned vegetables have decreased about one percent a year for the past 15 years, according to Bourne. "There's a lot to be said for canned vegetables. They retain nutrients, they're convenient and they have a long shelf life. But they're so darned mushy!"

Cash Prizes Given In Homemade Ice Cream Contest

The only contestant to hand-churn her homemade ice cream recipe, was the first-place winner in "The Great Taste of Homemade Ice Cream" contest sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy Promotion Program, American Dairy Association & Dairy Council, Mid East United Dairy Industry Association, and Middle Atlantic Milk Marketing Association.

Wanda Yoder of Belleville received $300 for her "Raspberry Homemade Ice Cream," prepared for the judges during August's "Ag Progress Days" at Penn State's Rock Springs Farms outside of State College. Five finalists had been selected for the "churn-off" from written recipes submitted to the PA Dairy Promotion Program prior to August 1. The final judging was based on effective use of REAL dairy products, taste and visual appeal, originality and creativity, and ease of preparation.

Annette and Michael Schiever of Harmony were awarded $100 for their second-place "Mint Chocolate Harmony" recipe. Honorable Mentions, accompanied by a new ice cream maker, went to Joyce Burkholder of Chambersburg for her "Vanilla Ice Cream;" Ruth Ann Walters of Middleburg for her "Homemade Grape Nut Ice Cream;" and Doris M. Brenize of Shippensburg for her "Peach Ice Cream."

For a free brochure containing the contest's winning homemade ice cream recipes, send a self addressed, stamped envelope to "Homemade Ice Cream," PA Dairy Promotion Program, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

SAVE$$$SAVE$$$SAVE$$$SAVE$$$
NON-UREA PRO-SIL Silage Activator NON-TOXIC

Do You Want To Cut Feed Costs This Winter? ? ?...
Pro-sil can raise your corn silage protein content to 16% and help you save over 50% in concentrate costs to balance your forage ration, with no urea in the formula. The savings are incredible! This is low input farming at its best.

One ton of Pro-sil added to corn silage will replace:

2.3 tons of 44% soybean meal	$862.50
500 lbs. of minerals	100.00
1750 lbs. of shelled corn	109.38
	$1071.88
One ton of Pro-sil costs	430.00
SAVINGS to balance 26.66 tons of 65% moisture corn silage	$641.88

Pro-sil is easily applied to corn silage at harvest time, is totally safe, increases palatability, is an excellent preservative.

Pro-sil works in the same way on high-moisture ground ear corn.

Pro-sil will decrease your grain bills drastically, increase milk production, increase butterfat, and greatly increase net income.

Pro-sil treated corn silage supplies additional protein to the total ration from a forage source instead of from a concentrate. This raises the total ADF (fiber) in the feed ration, improving feed utilization and thus increasing butterfat.

Pro-sil was developed by Michigan State University, and is FDA approved.

Pro-sil is manufactured by Ruminant Feed Services, Inc.

REDUCE EGGSHELL DAMAGE

By Herbert C. Jordan
Associate Professor
Penn State

Many commercial egg layer farms have eggshell damage problems. This damage costs several thousand dollars loss per farm annually on many farms. One egg processor and production contract firm lost $350,000. in one year according to the field serviceperson.

If we study eggshell damage on a farm or in a processing plant we find it can be improved or corrected by:

•Selecting a strain or breed of bird with shells that stand processing.

•Not crowding birds in a cage. Roush et al. (1989) has shown that when considering the number of birds to put in a cage (240 sq. in. or 12" x 20") from a biological basis, the threshold or breakeven point would be 3 birds (80 sq. in. per bird).

•Improving or modifying egg handling equipment so that no egg receives excessive bumping.

•Gathering eggs as soon after they are laid as possible.

•Feeding a ration adequate in shell forming nutrients.

•Allowing no mycoplasma in the flock at all. Mycoplasma-free birds produce higher quality eggs according to the author's experience.

•Reducing stress; for example, do not use bright lights on birds and do not use 24 hours of light on birds.

•Keeping birds from getting excess abdominal or visceral fat—when you weigh pullets feel for fat. If they have more than 1/8 inch of fat on the abdomen, reduce it with a special ration and/or an exercise program for layers.

•Culling all flocks after 7 months of lay if the bird has a pale, dry, shriveled comb, hard fat in the abdomen, shriveled, small, dry, inactive vent, vent drainage, primary wing feather molt, or other symptoms of sickness or poor performance.

Call for help if total eggshell damage is over 2 percent of all eggs produced.

If you want another reason to reduce cracked eggs, remember egg damage causes great labor time loss in person-hours of cleaning equipment. Value loss in eggs drop at least 20 cents/dozen for damaged eggs and they may actually pass zero value and cost several dollars per dozen if you lose markets.

Cracked eggs are more susceptible to bacterial contamination than those with normal shells, therefore may be a greater risk in foodborne illness in humans.

COMPARE THESE FEATURES AND OPTIONS

Simple hydraulics allows one valve to operate the lift and stabilize cylinders. Center plumbing means less hose length and easier coupling.

The basic box is heavy duty steel welded seams and reinforced for even more strength.

Standard offset hitch adjusts in 5 inch steps to lengths from 6'3" to 7'11". To allow for different row crop spacings you can offset either right or left, 5, 7½, 10 or 12½ inches.

Rub rails offer more protection to vehicles when approaching during dumping cycle and when departing.

Stabilizer cylinders hydraulically lock on to axle to hold wagon rigid during dump cycle.

Galvanized roof features vent insert for straight through air flow.

Make Your Operation Safer • Use Year Round • Variety Of Crops • All Field Conditions • Operate In Wet And Muddy Conditions

WE HAVE DUMPING STATION CONVEYOR BOXES IN STOCK!

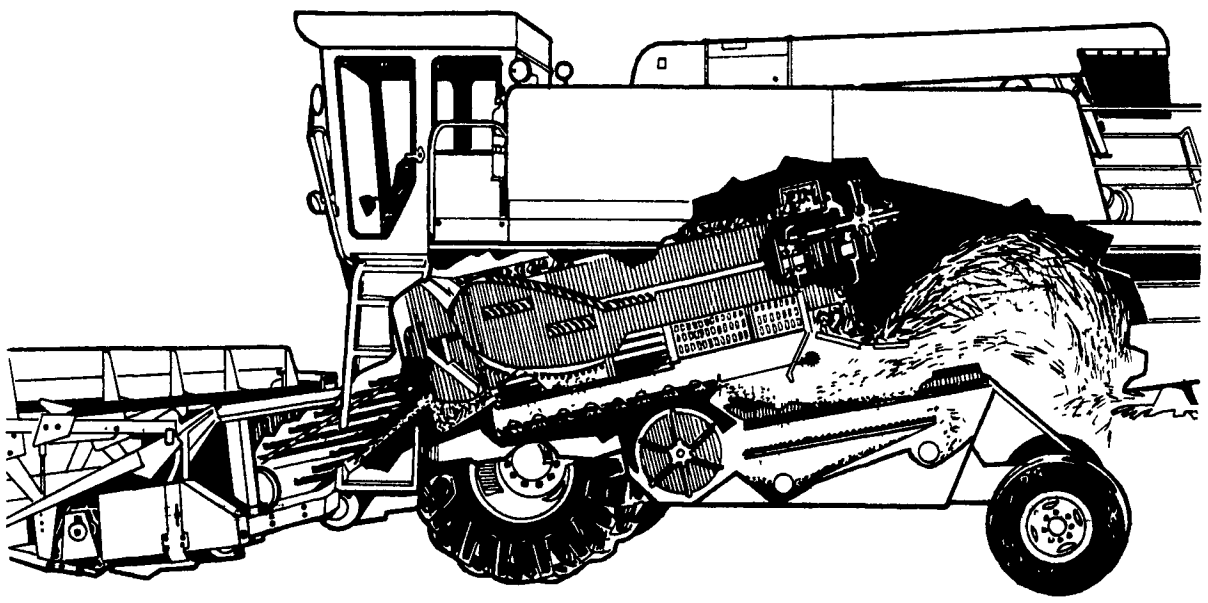
HOOBER C.B. HOOBER & SON INC. ...THE AXIAL-FLOW COMBINE SPECIALISTS

The Secrets To Case International Axial-Flow Combine Success In The East...

FEWER MOVING PARTS...

HIGHER QUALITY GRAIN...

ALL CROP VERSATILITY...



The one moving part in Axial-Flow's entire threshing/separating process is the single large-diameter rotor. Nothing more. No cylinder, beaters or straw walkers. There's far less that can break or need maintenance. That's Axial-Flow combine simplicity.

Axial-Flow helps bring top price at the elevator. It handles grain more gently. Less crackage and dockage. You'll combine higher moisture grain at faster ground speeds for a quicker harvest. That's Axial-Flow performance.

Axial-Flow Combines for every crop. Designed to harvest over 100 different crops including corn, soybeans, wheat, sorghum and others. All popular grain header sizes plus 4 to 8-row corn heads.

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE...

HOOBER COMBINE SERVICE SPECIALISTS KNOW COMBINES.

For twelve years Hoober's 5 combine mechanics have been working with Axial-Flow technologies.

A COMBINE BOUGHT FROM HOOBER IS BACKED BY PEOPLE WHO KNOW AND CARE.

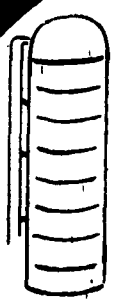
S & S SILO SERVICE



ATTENTION FARMERS
Strengthen And Reseal Your Silo With Shotcrete

S & S Silo Service Has Experience Over 500 Silos Have Been Relined With Shotcrete

S&S Silo Service prepares the silo surface by using a 3,000 lb. pressure washer, thus making the silo moist, making a much better surface to bond shotcrete. After shotcreting, S&S always takes away any roughness by applying a steel trowel finish.

The excellent bonding of shotcrete to the silo will keep out moisture and prevent mold from growing on the side of the silo.

SILO-BOOSTER

REDUCING THE LEVEL OF NITRATE IN HEAT STRESSED CORN SILAGE

Why should you use Master Mix SILO-BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 21 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage inoculant yet developed.

Laboratory analysis of both treated and untreated silages confirms the increased production of lactic acid by the bacterial cultures in SILO-BOOSTER.

	SILO-BOOSTER TREATED	CONTROL
Lactic acid % (average of 11 measurements from day 1 to day 30)	2.35%	1.83%
pH (average of 11 measurements from day 1 to day 30)	3.98%	3.96%

While both silages showed very similar changes in total pH change; the SILO-BOOSTER treated silage contained more lactic acid. The homofermentive production of lactic acid by SILO-BOOSTER cultures reduces the potential for dry matter losses and the generation of excessive heat of fermentation.

COMPARISON OF SILO-BOOSTER TREATED AND CONTROL SILAGES

Fed To High Producing Dairy Cows
Conducted At The University of Wisconsin

	SILO-BOOSTER SILAGE	CONTROL
Milk (Lb./day)	87.3	86.2	NS
Fat %	3.84	3.88	NS

N.S. - non significant, *<5%, <1%
Statistics conducted on weekly totals.

SILO-BOOSTER treated silage was able to generate income per ton of forage feed. With milk valued at $ .125 per pound; butterfat at $ .17 per point; forage at $ .045 per pound of dry matter, and the concentrate portions at $ .08 per pound; SILO-BOOSTER silage returned $4.90 for each $1.00 invested in inoculant.

APPLICATION: 1 Lb. of SILO-BOOSTER per ton of Forage.
2 Lbs. of SILO-BOOSTER per ton of High Moisture Ear Corn.

Burkhart Shows Chester County Champion 4-H Hog

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The 1989 Chester County 4-H Swine Show and Sale was held once again at New Holland Sales Stable. Judge Chet Hughes of Lancaster County had a challenging evening as 46 individuals and 17 trios were entered. Grand champion market hog of this year's show went to Jill Burkhart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Burkhart of Mohnton. The 250-pound hog was purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $2 per pound. The reserve grand champion was exhibited by Matthew Howe. Matt, the son of Lamar and Mary Howe of Downingtown, also won first place in the Pennsylvania State 4-H livestock judging contest earlier the same week. The reserve champion weighed 215 pounds and sold to Hatfield Quality Meats for $1 per pound.

Jill Burkhart not only exhibited the grand champion market hog, but the grand champion trio as well. The champion hog was part of the trio, but was sold separately. The remainder of the trio was purchased by Leidy, Inc., of Souderton for $.80 per pound. The reserve grand champion trio, at a total weight of 715 pounds, was exhibited by Eric Olsen and purchased by Hatfield Quality Meats for $.62 per pound.

Other buyers included: Wayne Weidman; Dowingtown National Bank; M.H. Eby, Blue Ball; Erb Transport, Elverson; Agway, Cochranville; Keystone Farm Credit, Avondale; Agway, New Holland; Honey Brook Restaurant; Robert Hewitt, Spring City; Cockel Equipment, Elverson; Nissley Feed Center, Morgantown; Carl Wingard Fuel Inc., Elverson; Dale Gay, Coatesville; Elverson Bank, New Holland; Burkhart Farms; J.W. Miller, Horseshoe; Cedar Meadows Swine; Dotty Work, Coatesville; Paul Walker, Delaware. The Chester County 4-H Swine Club greatly appreciates the support of these buyers, many of whom have supported the club for several years.

Judge Chet Hughes selected Jill Burkhart's hog as the grand champion of the Chester County 4-H swine roundup.

The reserve grand champion of the Chester County 4-H swine roundup was Matthew Howe, right. With him is judge Chet Hughes, Lancaster County Extension agent.

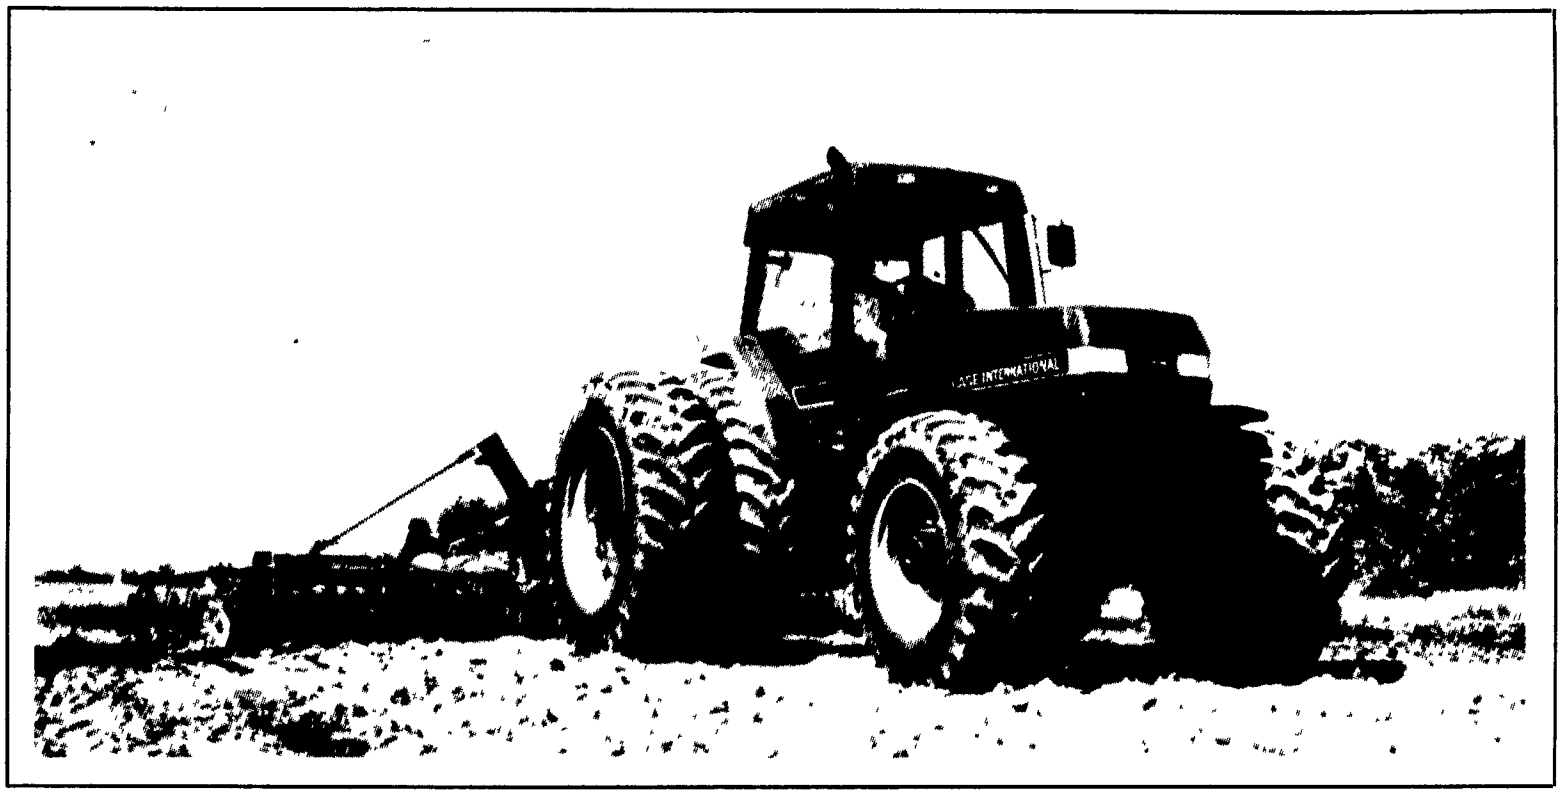
What farmers are saying about Case IH MAGNUM tractors.



Recently, several hundred farmers were invited to test MAGNUM tractors on their own farms. After they had used the tractors an average of 36 hours, they were asked to compare the engine, transmission, cab, hydraulics and serviceability to their current tractors.

MAGNUM won overwhelmingly in every category of comparison.

The users reported: 85.3% said that the engine powered its way to the top; 91.0% said the MAGNUM cab was a comfortable winner; and 85.7% judged the power-shift transmission to be smoothly superior.

Over-all MAGNUM was preferred by a whopping 84.9% over a strong field that included John Deere, Ford, White and Deutz-Allis models.

How does MAGNUM compare with your tractor? You'll never know until you take your own test drive. Ask your Case IH dealer for a demonstration on your farm 85.3% of farmers tested rated MAGNUM engine lugging ability, fuel economy and over-all performance better than their tractor.

91.0% judged the MAGNUM cab superior in visibility, quietness, comfort and convenience to their current 100+ hp tractor

85 7% said the MAGNUM transmission was best in ease of speed selection, smooth shifting and in proper speeds for the job.

York County Fair Has Something For Everyone

YORK (York Co.) — For 224 years, the appeal of the York Fair has been universal. People from near and far, both old and young, have held fast to their memories of great times past and have looked forward to the next Fair with happy anticipation. Each year the Fair just keeps getting better and better and the 1989 lineup of events promises to be one of the best ever!

Whether it's the food, exhibitions, entertainment, rides or free shows that bring you out to the Fairgrounds, it certainly should add up to being the best time you'll have all year!

The York Fair reflects its diversified heritage throughout the Fairgrounds with a tremendous variety of exhibits, displays and demonstrations.

Horticultural Hall contains items from the bountiful farms, fields and kitchens of the Mid-Atlantic region. Individuals compete for a coveted blue ribbon in categories such as jams, jellies, candy and even homemade wine. The baked goods are a sight to behold and, for a few lucky judges, delicious to taste. "Our Best Cherry Pie" along with the "Blue Ribbon Apple Pie Contest" and the "Great American Apple Dumpling Contest" attract hundreds of entries. The abundance of selected fruits and vegetables (including Pennsylvania's largest pumpkin) are among the "must sees" on everyone's list.

A Farm Fresh Market Stand is also on hand in the Hall. Here, you can buy many seasonal favorites and choose from a wide selection of luscious, homegrown produce.

The Pumpkin Tent, located just outside Horticultural Hall, will be filled with hundreds of pumpkins grown and decorated by York County school children and these entries are always charming and creative.

For those who enjoy watching skilled craftspeople at work, the Crafts and Demonstrations Theater is the place to visit. A variety of events takes place daily and demonstrations can range from needlecrafts, cake decorating, and even beekeeping. Other interesting attractions are the Antique Farm Machinery demonstrations. An operative wheat thresher, straw baler, corn grinder and tractors all provide an educational look at our agricultural past.

Old Main, adjacent to Horticultural Hall, is filled with interesting handicrafts, antiques and photography. In this building craftspeople enter their own work, competing for ribbons and prizes.

Over in the Livestock Barns on Cattle Drive, fair goers get a good look at the East's largest livestock show. Cow Milking, Hog Calling and Livestock Judging are part of this country experience.

No trip to the farm would be complete without seeing some poultry. The Poultry Building features over 6,000 exhibits of domestic and exotic poultry, as well as pigeons, hamsters, guinea pigs, and rabbits.

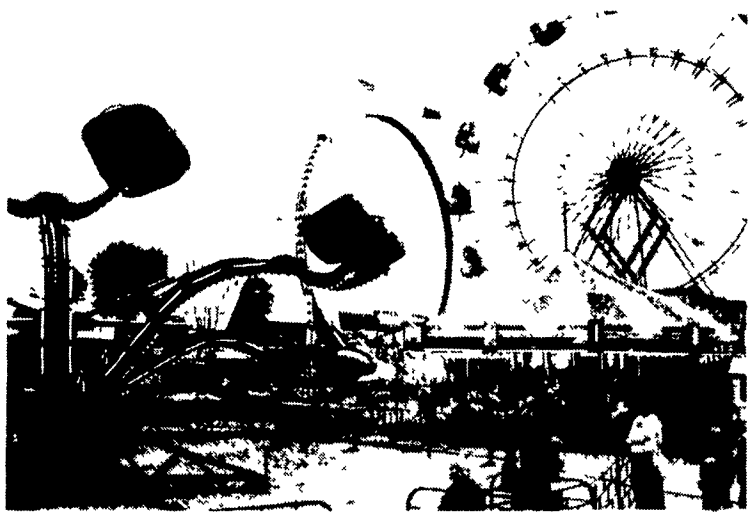
All buildings open daily at 10:00 a.m. and close at 10:00 p.m. (except the Poultry Building which closes at 9:00 p.m.)

Grandstand Entertainment

The 1989 York Fair will once again live up to its reputation as one of the finest entertainment facilities in the country. The 10,000 seat Grandstand is known far and wide for having an outstanding sound system and great stage visibility from the track seats right on back.

Friday, September 8 will feature REO Speedwagon; Saturday, September 9, The Statler Brothers; Sunday, September 10, 30th Anniversary of Rock "N" Roll; Monday, September 11, 38 Special; Tuesday, September 12, Charlie Daniels Band; Wednesday, September 13, The Best of the Bands; Thursday, September 14, The New Kids On The Block (Sold out); Friday, September 15, Alabama; Saturday, September 16, George Jones and Ricky Van Shelton.

For current grandstand information, phone the York Fair at 717-848-2596 or 717-848-2033.



The York Fair reflects its diversified heritage throughout the fairgrounds with a tremendous variety of exhibits, displays, and demonstrations.

Free Stage Shows and Attractions

The York Fair has expanded its free shows to provide an even greater number of attractions and performances throughout Fair Week. No matter what your age, there's certain to be a free show you'll enjoy including--

The Hanneford Family Circus (under a brand new, even bigger, Big Top) featuring top acts from Europe and America with aerialists, acrobats, clowns, elephants, chimps, dancing horses and more;

Hot, new Capitol recording stars, Canyon, a country group that has entertained fair goers from coast to coast; The Nichols Brothers, back by popular demand, a versatile group that has charmed York Fair audiences for years; Doc Swan's Vaudeville Circus, where you can "step right up" to the mind boggling exhibitions of fact, fiction and fabrication; the Bob Hale's Racing Pigs, an entertaining event for everyone; the Urias' Troupe Globe of Death, a breathtaking motorcycle act. In addition, the Pennsylvania National Guard will be on hand with their outstanding radar defense demonstration and, straight from "Top Gun", a USAF F16 "Fighting Falcon" Jet will be parked just outside Memorial Hall. The famous Heinz Hitch, a spectacular restored 19th Century wagon pulled by eight massive Percheron horses, will be making several appearances daily throughout the Fairgrounds. And speaking of horses, Harness Racing takes place Tuesday, September 12 through Friday, September 15 at 12:00 noon and admission to the Grandstand racing program is also free.

In order to see the many events at the 1989 York Fair, fair goers will want to attend more than once and the extensive reduced or free gate admission plans can certainly make this easier. Regular parking charges will be in effect each day (except Wednesday). Gates open daily at 8:00 a.m.

Gehl Introduces Front-Mounted Forage Harvester

WEST BEND, WI. — Gehl Company now offers the new CB1040, a front-mounted forage harvester for use with bidirectional tractors with a three-point hitch.

"The 1040 is an attractive and cost-effective addition to bidirectional tractors because it provides farmers with many of the features of a self-propelled forage harvester for a lot less money," says Terry LeFever, Gehl's forage harvesting equipment product manager.

With the tractor seat rotated, and the forage box trailing behind, the operator is seated directly above the harvesting action for superior visibility and control. The 1040 performs well in muddy fields because of its light weight, and because of the bidirectional tractor's articulated steering and 4-wheel drive capability.

The three-paddle 36-inch diameter, 1,000-RPM blower is direct-driven and close-coupled to the cylinder, as in Gehl's 860 forage harvester. This feature allows straight-through feed flow from crophead to forage box.

The 1040 also includes an electric clutch which allows the use of a speed monitor to prevent spout plugging, and torque sensors to eliminate downtime from shear bolt failure.

Spout rotation, cap control, forward and reverse selection, as well as the electric clutch positions, are all electrically controlled from a box mounted to the cab's steering pedestal.

A 7-foot hay pickup and 2- and 3-row cornhead attachments are available to maximize the flexibility of Gehl's unique front-mounted harvester. An optional water tank is available with the hay attachment.

For more information contact Richard Burckardt, Gehl Company, 143 Water Street, West Bend, WI 53095, phone: 414/334-9461.

This front-mounted forage harvester, designed for use with bidirectional tractors with a three-point hitch, has a rotating seat and preforms well in muddy fields because of its light weight.

Anchor Introduces New Sizes Of Rodenticide

ST. JOSEPH, MO. — Anchor Animal Health introduced two new sizes of Trap-N-A-Sak® rodenticide - the 12-pound bulk pail and the convenient six pack. These two new sizes are in addition to the familiar 50x3-ounce pail.

Trap-N-A-Sak is the only rodenticide with a patented sweet corn base that rats prefer 4 to 1.

In conjunction with the introduction of the two new sizes, and as part of a nationwide promotional campaign, Anchor is giving away 20 cruises to the Bahamas for purchases of Trap-N-A-Sak rodenticide.

Anchor is a division of Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health, Inc., a diversified producer of biologicals, pharmaceuticals, growth implants, microbials, and insecticides for livestock and companion animals.

For more information contact Royce Eisenhauer, Boehringer Ingelheim Animal Health, Inc., 816/233-2571.

Anchor's rodenticide now comes in two new sizes: a 12-pound bulk pail and six pack.

Farmhand Offers Deep Till Yield Builder

EXCELSIOR, MN. — The Glencoe YB8400 Yield Builder, a total one-pass primary deep tillage and soil management machine, has been introduced by Farmhand, Inc. The Yield Builder combines deep tillage and conventional shank-type tillage into one machine. First, 20-inch disc coulters slice crop residue for incorporation and erosion control. Then, deep till shanks work from 8 to 16-inches deep to fracture hardpan and break up compaction. Finally, conventional shanks work from 4 to 12 inches deep to provide tillage across the total topsoil. Sizes include 5, 7, 9, 11 or 13 shank models with 6'3" to 16'3" working widths.

For more information, contact Farmhand, Inc., P.O. Box 1500, Excelsior, Minnesota 55331.

Agreement With Yetter Gives Case IH Impelements No-Till Capability

RACINE, Wisc. — Under a cooperative agreement between Case IH and the Yetter Manufacturing Company of Colchester, Ill., Case IH dealers are now marketing the Yetter 6600 Series coulter cart as an allied attachment for the Case IH 5200 Series grain drill and other implements.

The 6600 Series coulter cart allows for reduced- or no-till planting of small grains or soybeans. The coulter cart also enhances performance when attached to implements such as chisel plows or V-chisels.

The 6600 Series coulter cart slices through hard soil or heavy surface residues, breaking the way for easy penetration by drill openers or trash flow around chisel shanks. The coulters are mounted on a toolbar at 7-, 8-, or 10-inch row spacings in 15- or 20-foot drill widths.

Implements attach to the coulter cart with a Category II three-point quick hitch. To improve cutting performance, or to allow the addition of liquid fertilizer openers, an optional second toolbar can be mounted on the cart.

The 6600 Series coulter cart features two-way hydraulic depth control, a patented weight transfer system and a self-leveling linkage.

The coulter cart offers independent two-way hydraulic circuits for control of coulter cutting depth and raising and lowering of the cart and implement. The raise/lower feature allows precise depth adjustment, ensuring consistent cutting of residues and proper depth to maximize drill opener entry and seed germination conditions. The dual system also permits on-the-go adjustments for varying field conditions.

Also standard on the 6600 Series is the Yetter weight transfer system™, which allows the operator to transfer tractor weight onto the toolbar through a parallel linkage to ensure sufficient penetration of the coulters.

Once set, the weight transfer linkage also acts as a self-leveling system. When the depth of the coulters changes, the hitch compensates to ensure that the drill operates at its original depth setting.

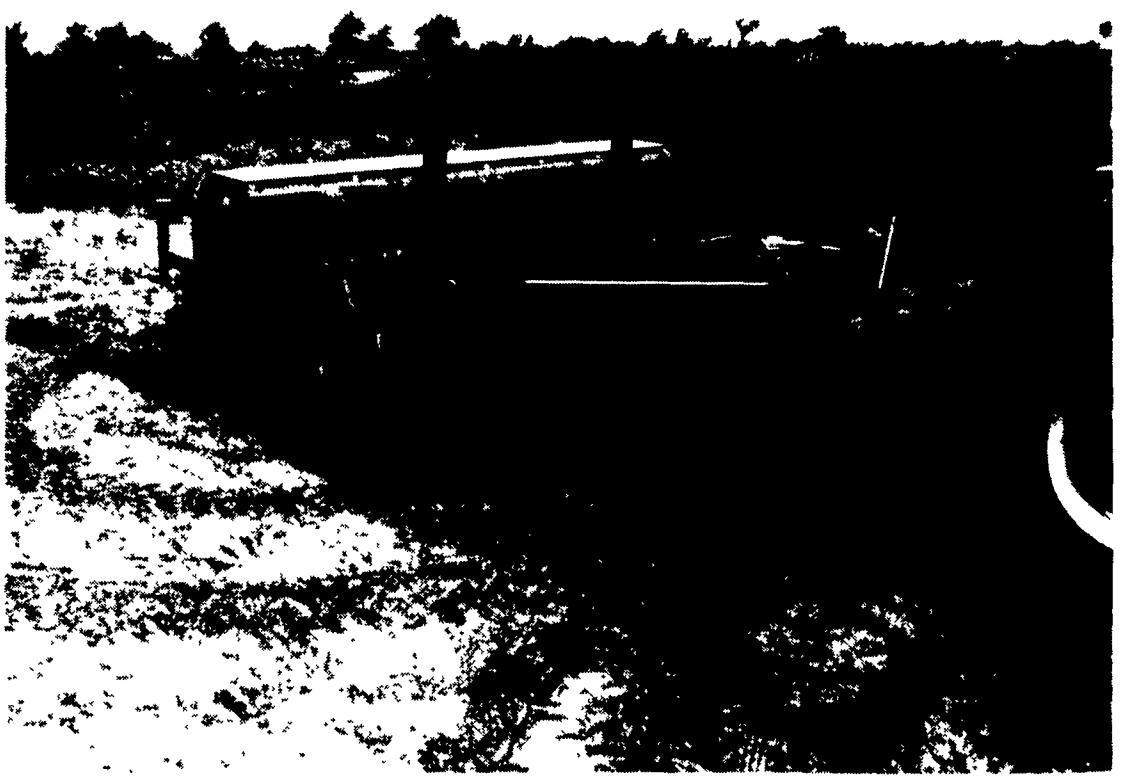
The coulters are easily adjusted side-to-side on the toolbar and come in three styles suitable for a wide variety of applications. A 17-inch ripple coulter opens a very narrow slit and penetrates hard soil and tough residues easily. The 16-inch bubble coulter also begins by cutting a straight slit, but tills more aggressively as the bubbles enter the uppermost level of the seedbed. When aggressive tillage action is necessary, the 18-inch wavy coulter is the best option.

In addition, BASF has recognized the 5200 Series drill and the 6600 Series coulter cart as an approved unit for use in the BASF no-till program. Farmers using the implements in tandem for no-till practices can qualify for incentives under the program.

The 6600 Series coulter cart with the Case IH 5200 Series drill also allows farmers to seed land placed in the Conservation Reserve Program with minimal disturbance to existing ground.

Headquartered in Racine, Wisconsin, Case IH is a worldwide manufacturer and marketer of Case IH agricultural and Case construction equipment. Case IH is an affiliate of Tenneco Inc., Houston.

Tenneco Inc. is a diversified industrial corporation with major business interests in natural gas pipelines, agricultural and construction equipment, shipbuilding automotive parts, packaging chemicals and minerals.



Case IH dealers now are marketing the Yetter 6600 Series coulter cart as an allied attachment for Case IH implements under an agreement with the Yetter Manufacturing Co. The coulter cart allows the Case IH 5200 Series grain drill to be used in no-till applications.

21st Century Genetics Adds Milking Speed, Temp. Data To Sire Selection

SHAWANO, WI. — Owners of cows in the "protein" breeds can now apply milking speed and temperament to their sire selection considerations when they read the new sire directory from 21st Century Genetics.

Al Kuck, vice president of genetic services, said, "This is an effort to provide more complete information on the proven bulls in the 21st Century Genetics line-up to the industry."

Kuck added, "The two management traits are routinely evaluated in our Mating Appraisal for Profit (MAP) program using the 50-point linear evaluation system. The two traits are scored just like the other traits with the scores being assigned by the herd owner or herdsman working with the evaluator."

The information is analyzed with an Animal Model procedure which includes sire and maternal grandsire relationships, Kuck said.

"Transmitting Abilities resulting from this analysis are published on bulls if an adequate number of daughters have been scored. These are true genetic evaluations of the two management traits," Kuck explained.

Similar to other traits, the Transmitting Abilities range from -3.0 to +3.0.

Kuck cautioned breeders, "Research shows the heritabilities of the two traits are rather low. Thus we would recommend they be used only as a secondary screening tool when choosing sires to use in the herd."

Milking Speed and Temperament are best considered for individual matings when an extreme problem exists, Kuck advised.

A new 21st Century Genetics sire directory is available by writing to 21st Century Genetics, 100 MBC Dr., Shawano, Wi., 54166.

Dairy Feeding Systems Symposium Scheduled For Harrisburg

ITHACA, N.Y. — A national symposium on Dairy Feeding Systems will be held in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, on January 10-12, 1990. The symposium speakers, who represent 14 states and Canada, will focus on ways to improve dairy farm profitability through improved feeding systems and strategies. The speakers include animal scientists, dairy scientists, agricultural engineers, a veterinarian, an agronomist, cooperative extension specialists, industry representatives, and two dairy management consultants. All registered participants will receive a copy of the proceedings at the symposium.

The symposium is organized into seven sessions. The first, under the heading "Considerations in Feeding Systems," covers such topics as the effect on a farm's feeding system of increased milk production per cow and the significance of forage particle length in dairy rations. In the session entitled "System Management," speakers will discuss silo management, hay and silage preservation, and troubleshooting feeding systems. One speaker will present the findings of a recent study of how feed dollars are spent on 28 dairy farms.

Other sessions will focus on delivery systems, ways to encourage good feed intake, pasturing in the feeding program, feeding automation, and feed choices. The latter session reviews options for nontraditional feeds such as food processing wastes. In addition to the seven sessions, a special feature of the Dairy Feeding Systems symposium is a panel discussion which will bring together a number of dairy farmers who can provide "An Operator's Viewpoint on Feeding Systems." Each session, as well as the panel discussion, will be followed by a discussion period during which the audience will be invited to ask questions of the speakers and comment on the presentations.

The Dairy Feeding Systems symposium will contribute to the work of all those interested in improving dairy farm profitability. Dairymen, farm advisers, manufacturers of feeding equipment, feed suppliers, farm builders, herd health practitioners, agricultural lenders, and others concerned with the production, storage, handling, formation and delivery of feed for dairy cattle are encouraged to take part. For a complete program, write to: NRAES, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Cooperative Extension, Ithaca, NY 14853.

The symposium is sponsored by the Northeast Dairy Practices Council (NDPC), the American Society of Agricultural Engineers (ASAE), and the Northeast Regional Agricultural Engineering Service (NRAES).

Registration and Hotel Accommodations

The registration fee is $115.00 if paid before December 18, 1989. Late and walk-in registration is $130.00. This fee includes admission to the symposium, one luncheon, one dinner, breaks, and a copy of the proceedings. Please make checks (in U.S. funds) payable to NRAES and send before December 18, 1989, to NRAES, 152 Riley-Robb Hall, Cooperative Extension, Ithaca, New York 14853. Include name, address, telephone number, and professional affiliation.

The symposium will be held at the Penn Harris Inn and Convention Center, where rooms have been set aside until December 23, 1989. Let the hotel know you will be attending the Dairy Feeding Systems National Symposium to obtain these special rates:

Robinson Family Purchases Poultry

BIRDSBORO (Berks Co.) — George W. Robinson, chairman of the Board of Kreamer Feed Store, Inc. and partner in D&G Contract Production, announced that they have purchased the former turkey processing plant of Swift and Co. at Birdsboro.

This facility is more than 43,000 square feet with 14 acres of ground and at peak production had processed 70,000 turkeys weekly. The facility was built in 1964 and has not been operated since 1985.

George and Doris Robinson founded Kreamer Feed Store in 1947 and contracted their first poultry meatbirds in 1954. D&G Farm-Contract Production operates their own farms and contract production. During 1988 they produced over 33 million pounds of poultry for specialty markets.

William D. Robinson is now president and general manager of Kreamer Feed Store and Edward C. Robinson is vice-president and dispatcher. Also, William manages D&G Farms and Edward is president and manager of Kreamer Automotive Service. James Robinson, a student at Penn State, is an active stockholder of Kreamer Feed Store.

The poultry processing plant will be owned by Robinson Farms, Inc. and operated as Blue Ribbon Poultry, Inc. All stock ownership will be by the Robinson family. William is president and Chief Executive Officer and Edward is vice-president. Julie Robinson is office manager.

It is planned to start processing in August and remodeling of the plant is in progress to enable it to accommodate roasters and capons as well as turkeys. There will be shackle time available this fall for custom processing these types of birds. It is not planned to process regular broilers but specialty products which other plants in our area cannot accommodate.

As the facility increases production, new growers for turkeys and roasters will need to be added.

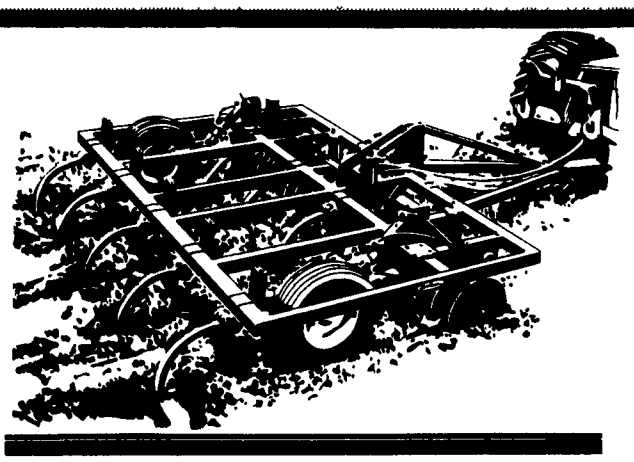
DEEP TILL & SOIL BUILDERS

Frame Type Deep Till

The frame type DEEP TILL is available with a Category II or III hitch and may be equipped with the optional drawbar hitch to convert it to a pull type. The hitch features both clevis and straight drawbar for four-wheel drive tractors. Adjystable top arm controls the front-to-rear leveling of the machine. Sizes range from 12'6" to 27'6". Hydraulic gauge wheels control working depth from 8" to 18". The pull-type hitch is easily removed to convert the unit to a 3-point Category III hitch model. The automatic reset feature on all models allows non-stop tilling and eliminates the inconvenience, downtime and expense of replacing shear bolts. All frame type Deep Tills must be used with pull-type hitch when using either style trash cutting coulters.



THE EROSION STOPPERS

Now you can build up your soil while you stop erosion with Brillion's 14 models of Soil Builders. These conservation tillage machines slice through residue, then chisel and ridge the soil. They increase water holding capacity. Blend in cornstalks and trash. Fight water and wind erosion.

Brillion Soil Builders are the one-trip minimum tillage tools that save fuel and cover 50% more acres compared to moldboard plowing. See us for names of farmers who have used Brillion Soil Builders. Available in new 15- and 17-shank sizes for big tractors; or 5, 7, 9, 11 and 13-shanks to match whatever h.p. you have.

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — Pleasant Valley Superb Cashew, the 6-year-old Jersey who was named supreme champion of the 1989 Farm Show, topped the Franklin County Jersey Show August 24. Owned by Denise Martin of Pleasant Valley Jerseys, Chambersburg, Cashew was also the best-uddered cow of the show.

Denise also showed the reserve senior and reserve grand champion of the youth show, Pleasant Valley Master Royal, a four-year-old Master Milestone C daughter.

Reserve senior and reserve grand champion honors of the open show went to Clairwood Valiant Brandy, a three-year-old owned by Denise's brother Doug Martin.

Lester Martin, Doug and Denise's father, showed a 100,000 pound cow which earned high praise from judge John Morris. DJF Gen Peony, a 12-year-old cow, has a lifetime record of 117,216 pounds of milk and 5,173 pounds of fat. She is a Fair Weather superb Generator daughter bred by Mr. and Mrs. George R. Danforth.

The Guernsey and Brown Swiss shows ran concurrently with the Jersey show at the Franklin County Fair held at the Chambersburg Rod and Gun Club.

The Schnebly family of Crown Stone Farm in Clear Spring, MD swept most of the top categories in the Guernsey show. Crown Stone Jupiter Orchid, a four-year-old, was named reserve senior and reserve grand champion of the open show, and senior and grand champion of the youth show. She is owned by Brian R. Schnebly.

Senior and grand champion of the open show was Crown Stone Tex Nancy, a six-year-old cow owned by Seth K. Schnebly.

The youth reserve senior and youth reserve grand champion trophy went to Crown Stone Choice Overden, a five-year-old owned by Mark A. Schnebly. Overden was also the second best-uddered cow of the show.

Best-uddered cow of the show was William S. Schnebly's four-year-old, Crown Stone Fayette Peach.

Junior champion of the youth and open shows was Darling Downs Fayette Teresa, a senior yearling owned by Dale Mummert of Chambersburg. John C. Schnebly showed the youth reserve junior champion, Crown Stone Andy Tweety, a summer yearling. Reserve junior champion of the open show was Mark A. Schnebly's senior calf, Crown Stone Boris Timonium.

Judge John Morris was impressed with the quality of the Guernsey show. "They could stand a lot of competition," he said.

Animals shown by sisters Jennifer and Patty Gloss of Twin Lane Farm, Chambersburg dominated the Brown Swiss show. Patty showed the grand champions of both the youth and open shows.

Deere Introduces Plow

MOLINE, IL — John Deere has introduced a four-bottom integral reversible moldboard plow that uses one set of bottoms. A hydraulic cylinder, standard equipment, reverses the moldboards laterally rather than the traditional rollover method of two-way plows.

The new design eliminates the initial cost and service requirements for one complete set of standards and bottoms. It also requires less three-point hitch capacity and less ballasting of the tractor's front end. The John Deere 3945 plow is designed for medium-use duty and 100 to 140 horsepower (75-104 kw) tractors.

The bi-directional bottoms have a single-piece moldboard and a single-piece share with hard-faced points. Shearbolts protect the four bottoms from damage caused by buried obstructions.

O.K. Research Program

HARRISBURG — State Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff announced today that Pennsylvania peach and nectarine growers have voted to continue a production and marketing research program.

Wolff said that growers renewed the program in a referendum conducted August 1 to 15. The 54-25 vote assures that the program will continue under a revamped Pennsylvania Agricultural Commodities Marketing Act (PACMA), which was changed in 1987 to give producers control over operations.

Wolff noted that the peach and nectarine growers join Pennsylvania apple, vegetable, dairy, potato, and sheep-and-wool producers as groups with established marketing and research programs.

"We're pleased the peach and nectarine research program will continue," Wolff said. "Grower satisfaction will increase now that they have greater control over their research efforts. The department will provide expertise and support when needed."

Stoltzfus Holstein Tops 44th Annual Southeast 4-H Dairy Show

BY VAL VANTASSLE
Berks Co. Correspondent

KUTZTOWN (Berks Co.)—An eight-year-old Holstein belonging to Duane Stoltzfus of Morgantown topped her breed at the 44th Annual Southeast 4-H Dairy Show held last Thursday at the Kutztown Fairgrounds.

Penwood Earl Sophia was named the grand champion of the Holstein breed over 110 other entries from Berks, Schuylkill, Montgomery, Chester, Northampton, Lehigh, and Bucks counties.

A Pennwood Job Earl daughter, Sophia's breeder was Harvey Stoltzfus. Sophia was the reserve champion at the Chester County 4-H Roundup and her owner was pleased with the results of the district show.

"I pulled out the first-place winners in each class to compare them and I was surprised to see that the junior two-year-old is virtually the same size as the older animals," Dann explained. Mimi, a Dreamstreet Odyssey-ET daughter, was bred by William Fairchild.

Stacey Geist had the junior champion, Reu-Hel Farms Bell Special, a junior yearling bred by Reu-Hel Farms Inc. Geist of Mertztown had another class winner at the event. The reserve, a senior yearling named Rocky Side Chaplain Charm Girl, was owned by Jeffrey Yoder of Elverson.

There were approximately 70 colored breed entries from the eight counties already mentioned and Monroe County. The Wolfgang family of Bechtelsville, Montgomery County had an exceptional day complete with two grand championships. Karen Wolfgang exhibited Mixed Maples Fayettes Amber, a junior two-year-old that topped the Guernsey breed.

"She has the best quality udder in the breed. Look at the high rear udder attachment and that wide rear udder," said judge Ginger Myers. Karen couldn't wait to get home to tell Amber's breeders, Grater Brothers, about the big win. "We don't have a farm so we keep our 4-H animals at Grater Brothers," she explained.

Reserve honors went to the junior champion, an intermediate calf owned by Daniel Hollenbach. Judge Myers described Lebanon

Daniel Hollenbach, right, exhibits the junior champion Guernsey, an intermediate calf. A junior yearling belonging to Lyle Kerrick was the reserve.

Tonya Kozlowski and her intermediate yearling, Top-O-Hill M.G. Valentine, took top junior honors in the Jersey division. Hewitts Bruce Topaz, an intermediate calf owned by Amy Hewitt, left, was named as the reserve.

Grand champion honors went to an eight-year-old grande dame, Penwood Earl Sophia, owned by Duane Stoltzfus of Morgantown. She was followed by a big junior two-year-old owned by Neil Rex, left.

Danielle Breaux, right, got involved with Milking Shorthorns because she liked the color. She also likes purple, which the color of the rosette she received when her summer yearling, Danbro PB Yanki Doodle Dandee, was named grand champion. Craig Hostetter's senior calf was selected as the reserve champion.

Bradley Kurtz's junior two-year-old, Wind Mill Emory Kondi, was selected as the grand champion Brown Swiss. Cynthia Moser, left, had the reserve grand champion, a four-year-old named Ballson Darlings Danielle.

Dan lives in Bernville, R.D. 1, Berks County, on his family's Guernsey farm.

Myers selected a junior yearling belonging to Lyle Kerrick as the reserve junior champion. Lyle is from Montgomery County. Reserve senior champion was Leister Favvors Pet, a four-year-old belonging to Carl Miller of Schuylkill County.

Kathryn Young, right, took junior champion honors in the Ayrshire breed with this big junior yearling, Timberlawn Mozart's RR Rachel. A very dairy junior calf took reserve junior champion honors for owner Jed Vail.

The second Wolfgang victory went to Seth Wolfgang with his three-year-old Ayrshire Conebella M.R. Spice. Spice received a best udder designation as well as grand champion honors. Seth was particularly pleased with the placing. "My sister beat me at the local round up," he explained. Sister Amy, the Montgomery Co. Dairy Princess, placed second in the class behind her brother.

Katheryn Young, a Chester County 4-H'er, had both the reserve grand champion and the junior champion animals. The Young family has an Ayrshire and, according to her mom, Katheryn has two of the nicest animals. The reserve Timberlawn Mozart's Red Rose is a junior two-year-old. The junior champion was Timberlawn Mozarts RR Rachel. Both animals are De Gui Vag Mozart daughters and were bred by Charles Young, Sr.

The reserve junior champion, Karlyn Command's Keeley, was a junior calf owned by Jed Vail of Berks Co.

The Jersey breed was dominated by members of the Chester Valley 4-H Club. Karen Sanner's four-year-old, Top-O-Hill Silver Beacon Penny, was named the grand champion of the breed. Myers appreciated Penny's udder. "This animal has a snug udder that is symmetrical and well balanced," she explained. Sanner's animal has had a fine season including reserve honors at the Kimberton and Goshen Fairs.

The reserve champion honors belonged to Tiffany Yeager and her three-year-old, Agape Observer Shmad. Yeager was also the breeder of her animal.

A third Chester Valley 4-H'er Tonya Kozlowski exhibited the junior champion, an intermediate yearling named Top-O-Hill M.G. Valentine. Valentine and Penny were both bred by 4-H leader Mildred Seeds and Kozlowski and Sanner keep their animals on her farm.

The junior reserve went to a Schuylkill County 4-H'er, Susan

A junior yearling belonging to Stacey Geist, right, was the top junior Holstein. Jeff Yoder had the reserve junior champion Holstein, a senior yearling.

Curtis of Pine Grove. Curtis exhibited a junior calf bred by Glenn and Linda Curtis.

Bradley Kurtz, another member of the Schuylkill County 4-H, had the champion Brown Swiss, Windmill Emory Kondi. The junior two-year-old was also the 4-H champion at the Schuylkill Co. Fair. The reserve went to a 4-year-old, Balison Darlings Danielle, belonging to Cynthia Moser of Montgomery Co.

The Brown Swiss junior champion, Windmill Tempter Monica, literally ran away with the title. A long wait and coming into heat combined to shorten the animal's patience and her owner Adam Spittler wound up on the ground with a bump on his head. Spittler, a second year member, was smiling before the next class was finished and vowed to be ready for the state competition. Monica and the grand champion were both bred by William Daubert.

The reserve went to Susan Slater's senior calf, Galaxys Tasha Tiranna Star. Slater is from Perkiomenville, Montgomery Co.

Danielle Breaux, another Montgomery Co. 4-H'er, started her project with Milking Shorthorns because she liked the color. Her choice paid off with an owned and bred grand champion, Danbro PB Yanki Doodle Dandi, a summer yearling. Craig Hostetter's senior calf, Pinesedge W.C. Garita, was the reserve. Garita was the champion of the Schuylkill County Show.

Montgomery County received the house keeping award. Master fitter and showman honorees are listed just once regardless of how many times they were awarded. Results are as follows.

Milk Market News

SCRANTON (Lack. Co.) — August 15, 1989 - If we had a Spring flush this year it was a short one and all the signs of lower milk supplies and higher prices are popping up all over the country. Nationally, milk production pulled up even with a year ago in May and June after increases of two and three percent since January. However, pockets of lower production have appeared in strategic areas in recent months where they affect milk prices the most. Minnesota and Wisconsin never really got started this year and are now falling two and three percent behind. As a result the Minnesota-Wisconsin Price Series has advanced 78 cents in four months making a giant leap of 43 cents in July to $11.76 which is $1.24 higher than last year. That $11.76 is also the highest M - W for July since 1984 when the Milk Diversion Program was on. Milk price is the most important sign to producers of lower supplies but a lot of things were happening to indicate a tighter marketing situation.

At the National Cheese Exchange block prices advanced to over $1.43 a pound and we haven't seen that since the M - W made its record high of $12.72 in November 1984. Even butter prices which had been on the skids all year, suddenly showed signs of life and made it up to $1.33 after a three-cent increase in late July. It doesn't sound like much but with the July 1 decrease in the support price all laid on butter, it was enough to allow the Commodity Credit Corporation to sell 6.6 million pounds on the commercial market at 110 percent of the support price. Since CCC has not purchased any powder or cheese for months and is now selling butter, the net removals for the second week of August were a negative 4.3 million pounds of milk equivalent compared to 33 million pounds a year ago. That's a drop of 37.3 million pounds of milk a week. Another sign of lower supplies is the increase in spot milk shipments to the South. During the second week of August, 121 loads made the trip from Wisconsin and that was the largest number since September 1988 and the schools haven't opened yet. Finally, it may not be the most important sign but I think it's significant that the Market Administrator in Order 68 had to issue a call order for Class I milk of 22 percent in July and August to get enough milk for fluid use in that market. This is not unusual in Eastern markets and it may happen this Fall but Order 68 is the Upper Midwest market in the heart of America's dairyland and I thought that was unusual.

Milk Check

The sign of improving market conditions that producers understand best are the numbers on their milk check and this month you got it. In Order 2 the Uniform or blend price for July milk went to $12.38 for a jump of 76 cents over June and $1.07 better than last July. In fact it was the best price for July since 1984, that magic year of the Milk Diversion Program when farm milk prices set their record highs. That $1.07 increase over last year was real but of the 76 cents over June, 40 cents of that was your Louisville Plan payment in June which was the last for the year. For August milk you start getting your pay back. The big bang came from a 57-cent jump in the Class II price from that July M - W. Over 60 percent of the milk in Order 2 in July went to Class II use and the M-W affects that immediately. The 43-cent increase from the M - W in Class I won't come to you until September. However, because the total milk shipped to Order 2 handlers was the lowest for July since 1980 your Class I utilization is up sooner than usual this year. Add to this a 21-cent increase in Class I prices next month plus a 36-cent pay back from the Louisville Plan you could be looking at another 60-cent jump for August. In fact it would take only a 80-cent increase to equal last year's high of $13.18 in November.

Class II Premium

At their July meeting the RCMA directors appointed a task force to examine dairy marketing conditions in the Northeast and report back to the Board with their recommendations in August. As a result, RCMA will start a 25-cent premium on Class II milk in September in Federal Orders 1 and 2. This will be in addition to a 65-cent premium on Class I milk in the same markets from September to December. Another important change to be made at that time will be to withhold premiums from members shipping to handlers who don't cooperate with RCMA in providing marketing information and premium money so the over order funds can be distributed equitably to the producers. The idea is to get producers involved in getting handlers to participate in RCMA efforts to provide the highest premiums that market conditions permit for all producers.

Another important change at RCMA is the resignation of Ed Anna, the manager, who served effectively in organizing RCMA to a membership of 22,000 producers and negotiating premiums with handlers who have paid a total of $66 million through RCMA to dairymen since September 1987. More importantly, those RCMA premiums generated additional premiums to non-members in amounts that may never be calculated and may not even be known to some producers. Some of those additional premiums were even used to discourage dairymen from joining RCMA and have, so far, effectively prevented the cooperative from achieving its full potential. Replacing Ed Anna will be Carmen Ross who, up until his retirement in June, was on the Market Administrator's staff in Order 2.

Outlook Uncertain

Even with rapidly increasing milk prices during the Spring months; even with all the signs of increasing demand and shorter supplies and even with disaster assistance programs passed by Congress and being considered in Pennsylvania, few people are predicting any more than a short term to the present situation. A great deal of how much these price increases benefit you will depend on your own farm situation and how much of a disaster you suffered. Some relief will be available soon from prices and/or programs but, just as was predicted last winter when prices were falling, it won't last long. Prices are only a part of the equation in determining profits. In spite of Federal Orders and price support programs competitiveness in milk production is just as intense as in any farm enterprise and periods of high prices should be viewed as opportunities to improve management skills to endure or survive the periods of low prices. Some forecasters are already predicting annual milk production at 150 billion pounds next year but let's make the most of the present situation before worrying about that.

Tests On Transgenic Alfalfa Given Go Ahead By USDA

WASHINGTON D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has given Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.; Johnstown, Iowa, permission to conduct a field test of alfalfa that has been genetically engineered to tolerate alfalfa mosaic virus. It is the first such permit USDA has issued to Pioneer.

The test will span three seasons and will take place in Johnston beginning in September. "Alfalfa is a perennial crop that reaches its peak performance in three to four years. The experiment is designed to study the course of the disease throughout the crop's natural lifetime," said James Glosser, administrator of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

To develop disease tolerance, scientists extracted a gene from the alfalfa mosaic virus and placed it in the alfalfa. The gene gives instructions for building the non-pathogenic coat that surrounds the disease-causing portion of the virus. Once incorporated into the alfalfa's genetic material, the gene causes the plant to produce the viral coat, protecting the crop from attack by the virus. Neither the alfalfa disease nor the genetically altered plants have any harmful effects on humans.

APHIS reviews proposed experiments of genetically modified plants to examine their potential for introducing agricultural pests or for significantly affecting the environment. No pest or environmental hazard has been found to be associated with the alfalfa test.

Copies of the environmental assessment are available by contacting Linda Gordon, Room 844, USDA, APHIS, Federal Building, 6505 Belcrest Road, Hyattsville, Md. 20782.

Junior National Draws Polled Hereford Youth Nationwide

SPRINGFIELD, IL — The Illinois State Fairgrounds hosted 485 female and steer entries at the 16th Junior National Polled Hereford Show and Forum. In addition, a wide range of Polled Hereford activities and competitions captured the youths' interest throughout the week of July 23-27.

Junior exhibitors and their families, leaders and advisors from 32 states participated in the week-long extravaganza of showring competition, judging contests, leadership training and family fun.

Topping the 400-head heifer show was Steve Osborne of Courtland, Kan. The 19-year-old showman nailed the grand championship with KJ Miss Classy Race 113X, a March 1988 daughter of Ihry GK Race. Osborne's winner had earlier been named Division III champion in the show of 1988-born heifers.

Reserve grand champion heifer was Ms Summer Knight, a May daughter of TOP MSU Knight Ryder. She was shown by Richard Courson of Hamburg, Ark.

Grand champion bred-and-owned honors went to K.C. Kefer, Crawfordsville, Ind., on KCK Lucky Penny, a March Knight Ryder daughter. Susan Waters of Norborne, Mo., led WF Mystify Me 804X to the reserve championship in the bred-and-owned heifer competition. She is a March Knight Ryder daughter.

The overall champion cow-calf pair was shown by Brian Nelson, Valley City, N.D. His winner was Cutarm Vly 107P Dona 11W, who showed with a February bull calf by G&R AJS Raceway 1900. Dona is also the reigning National reserve champion Polled Hereford heifer. Reserve overall cow-calf champion was shown by Andrew Matheny, Georgetown, Ky. He showed CB2 JR Miss 612U and her May bull calf by Trustmark.

Adding the calves at side in the 40-pair cow-calf competition boosts the total number shown to 525 head to parade before lead judge Wayne Haygood, Canadian, Texas, and associate judge Robert Botkin, Lexington, Ky. Judge Haygood complimented the juniors for consistently leading out "smooth, feminine heifers, but heifers with plenty of beef and volume."

Topping the 40-head Polled Hereford steer show was Joel Birdwell of Fletcher, Okla. Joel's entry was a March Knight Ryder calf who weighed in at 1,260 lb., posting a WDA of 2.51 lb. and .20 in. backfat. Reserve grand steer was a 1,270 lb. entry of Sherri Soules, Millbrook, N.Y. Her winner was sired by ACE Mohican Broker 4U.

Other activities featured the naming of Andrew Matheny as the National Junior Merit Award winner. This prestigious award goes annually to the junior member who had excelled not only in beef cattle work, but also in leadership and citizenship development. First runner-up for the Junior Merit award was B.J. Jones of Rubicon, Wis., while Amy Espenscheid, Argyle, Wis., was the second runner-up.

Winning the Walter and Joe Lewis Memorial award was Brian Reed, Green Ridge, Mo. This award is based on overall achievement in team and individual endeavors during the week.

The National Junior Polled Hereford Council was active in planning and carrying out the week's events. The Council is comprised of 12 representatives of the 37 state junior Polled Hereford associations. Their newly elected officers are Chairman Matt Sims, Elgin, Okla., Vice Chairman Stacy Tankersley, Elkins, Ark., Secretary Krystn Shrieve, Roseville, Calif., and Reporter Angela Morrison, Lexington, Ohio.

The team marketing competition once again drew a large number of contestants. Three team members led out a heifer before the judges and gave a marketing plan for selling her. They used performance data, advertising, pedigree and salesmanship in their presentation. Wisconsin was the winner in the junior division and Missouri won the senior category.

Kelly McMillan of Highland, Ill., topped the juniors and Shannon Neal, Osgood, Ind., was the best of the seniors in the illustrated speech contest. For second place, the judges selected junior Missy McGee, Alma, Neb., and senior Sonja Jensen, Cottage Grove, Wis.

Three divisions of the showmanship contest brought more than 200 kids into the ring to test their skills. Senior winner was Brian Reed, while reserve senior was Jamie Orth, Liberty, Mo. Top junior honors went to Angie Stump, Blue Rapids, Kan., with Heather Hicks, Cullman, Ala., in the runner-up slot. The peewee championship was awarded to Sarah Miller, Sallisaw, Okla., with Kyle Hitchcock, Cedarville, Ohio, taking the reserve title.

The Texas team came out on top of the Beef Bowl contest, where youth were tested on their knowledge of Polled Herefords and the beef industry in a quiz bowl format. The Pennsylvania juniors came in second. Alabama took home first place for their scrapbook and state exhibit, while Pennsylvania won the Sweepstakes award.

Tammy Riffel, Enterprise, Kan., was named premier exhibitor, and Matt Sims and Susan Waters tied for junior premier breeder honors. Michigan State University, East Lansing, was the senior permier breeder. Illinois nailed down the award for the best state group of heifers.

FmHA Invites Farm Borrowers To Meeting On Loan Services

CARLISLE (Cumberland Co.) — Farmers with loans from the Farmers Home Administration are invited to a meeting on Tuesday, September 26, 1989. Farmers from Bedford, Fulton, Cumberland, Perry, Franklin, Adams, Blair, Huntingdon, Lancaster and York are urged to attend. This meeting is to show how FmHA's computer program is used in considering loan servicing options such as rescheduling and write-downs, according to FmHA County Supervisor, Jeffrey A. King.

The meeting will be held at the Best Western Inn, 1245 Harrisburg Pike, Carlisle, at 10:00 a.m.

Jeff King said the meeting is particularly important for FmHA borrowers behind in their payments and those having difficulty with their loans.

"We will go over all the options available to those borrowers and explain how to go about finding one that will keep them in operation," Mr. King said. "We will be putting emphasis on the Debt and Loan Restructuring (DALR$) computer program that was developed just for this purpose."

Mr. King said DALR$ does many mathematical calculations quickly and in a number of combinations in helping in the analysis of farm financial plans.

"If a restructuring plan exists that will keep the borrower on the farm, DALR$ will find that plan, and that plan will minimize the cost of debt restructuring," he said.

DALR$ was developed as a tool to help debt restructuring authorized by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987. FmHA farm borrowers who are behind in their payments should, by all means, try to attend this meeting, Mr. King said.

The Woods mow'n machine™

It runs circles around trees, shrubs, fence rails and the competition.

Maximum maneuverability is the key to the mow'n machine's growing popularity Because engine power is supplied to each wheel independently, a true 360° zero radius turn can be made smoothly without any damage to your lawn

And the mow'n machine makes all the right moves even in those hard-to-reach places That keeps you from having to double-back for time-consuming follow-up trimming

Available with either a gasoline or diesel powered engine, the mow'n machine also features an out-front mower deck, finger tip controls for speed, direction and breaking and a comfortable, vinyl-padded, driver's seat

Adding versatility to the mow'n machine is easy with these easy-on, easy-off attachments:

Grass Vac 8 cu ft capacity Slide in Nylon Bag

Grass Vac 13 cu ft capacity Metal Hopper

Snow thrower with cab clears a 47' path

Dozer blade clears a 48 path

DUTCH STANDARD

Everything you'll ever need in a paint.

High-Quality Dutch Standard Latex Paint Offers:

- Durability
- Designers choice colors
- Superior color retention
- Beauty and protection
- Quick dry
- Easy application
- Superior hide

We would like to bring to your attention certain legislation enacted by several states that curtails or prohibits the sale and application of many types of oil-based paint coatings. This kind of legislation could result in the restricted availability of oil-base paints. With this in mind, choosing the best possible latex paint is becoming a very important consumer issue.

Manufacturing and marketing of latex paints began in the 1940s. The research and development of these paints are not new to Harrison Paint Corp. and they are now our most popular consumer coatings.

We offer the highest quality and the most complete line of interior and exterior latex paints available. Dutch Standard latexes surpass today's industry standards for durability and protection.

1989 BARN PAINTING Latest Developments

1. PREPARATION - High volume water blasting at 1,000 lb. pressure re-surfaces barn siding into a smooth (like new) appearance!
   a Performed by professionals quickly at reasonable cost.
   b By yourself with your own or rented equipment.
   c. Or other more conventional methods
2. APPLICATION - To insure better adherence to this super prepared surface, use the best fine bristle brush in four directions to evenly distribute the recommended mil thickness of seal coat coverage.
3. SPECIALIZATION - Every barn is different but generally it's best to use a high quality mildew resistant product, specially formulated to meet the requirements of this partially weathered wood that was and will be weather stressed.
4. WARNING - The modified oil latex is less effective as a wood preserver and actually increases nail & metal deterioration Deal with home people. At their rates, I could double mine.
